

Mouth of Gulf Feels Flooding Of Rio Grande

150,000 Residents Of Brownsville Brace for Creas

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Rio Grande, which left destruction and human misery in its wake, hurled its floodwaters today at the mouth of the Gulf of Mexico where the trouble began 10 days ago when Hurricane Beulah hit.

The river was at flood stage in the Rio Grande Valley from Rio Grande City eastward for almost 200 miles, although it was receding in some spots.

The 153,000 residents of the Brownsville, Tex.-Matamoros, Mexico area at the Rio Grande's mouth braced for the floodcrest, expected sometime today.

Flood stage is 18 feet at Brownsville. The Weather Bureau said the river had reached 16.58 feet early today.

Upstream, residents began returning to their silt-covered homes in the beginning of a massive cleanup.

In the Harlingen area streets were covered with one to five inches of silt and mud. Land-scaped yards were mud pits. Some houses that cost up to $65,000 had been filled with water up to the roof. Residents with brooms and mops were hard at work making their homes fit for habitation.

Only a few homes remained flooded in the extreme southwest portion of Harlingen where the Arroyo Colorado went on a tear after Beulah dumped heavy rain on the area.

The International Boundary and Water Commission warned residents between the banks and the levees at Brownsville to flee if water spills over the main channel.

The Weather Bureau was having difficulty estimating progress of the Rio Grande's crest because Mexican authorities were diverting unknown quantities of water into canals between Progreso, Mexico and Brownsville.

The lowest point of levees at Matamoros was 23 feet. The Weather Bureau said 25 feet was the lowest point of the levees at Brownsville.

The Texas death toll from Beulah stood at 12. Mexico listed 45 persons dead or missing.

Disease from pollution and mosquitoes was a threat to U.S. and Mexican residents. Air Force planes were spraying the valley against the mosquitoes. The project is expected to take at least a month.

President Johnson declared 24 counties in South Texas major disaster areas after a tour of parts of the Rio Grande.

Insurance adjusters are at work to determine the extent of Beulah's damage, already estimated at more than $1 billion.

Headquarters Under Attack

Reds Shelling Delta

SAIGON (AP)—The Communists opened up with mortars in the Mekong delta south of Saigon today, shelling the U.S. 9th Infantry Division headquarters—the main American base in the area—and four South Vietnamese camps.

Sixteen Americans were wounded in the attack, which followed intensified U.S. air strikes deep into North Vietnam. Air Force planes blasted the frequently hit MIG airfield at Hoa Lac west of Hanoi, and carrier-based Navy pilots flew through surface-to-air missile barrages to strike a bridge inside the port of Haiphong.

The shelling in the Mekong Delta began Friday night on isolated government outposts near the cities of My Tho and Can Tho. Within minutes, help came from Air Force "Spookies"—old twin-engine C47s specially equipped to suppress night attacks by dropping flares and then opening up with quick-firing Gatling guns.

The attacks on the South Vietnamese posts continued sporadically during the night. Early this morning the Red gunners shifted to the big U.S. camp at Dong Tam, 42 miles southwest of Saigon.

The Spookies unloaded nearly 50,000 rounds on suspected Red mortar positions.

At the northern end of South Vietnam, North Vietnamese mortar men fired about 100 shells on the district headquarters town of Hai Lang, about 25 miles below the demilitarized zone.

Communist infantrymen then tried to storm through wire barricades but were beaten back and lost 17 dead, military spokesmen said. South Vietnamese losses were called light.

DMZ Light
To the northwest the U.S. Marine outpost of Con Thien was under fire. It has been every day this month but U.S. headquarters did not specify how many shells came in. It said only that about 128 Communist rounds fell on American positions below the DMZ. This could include four big posts and other lesser ones in the area. They are guarding possible Red invasion routes to the northern provinces.

Since the heavy shelling of Con Thien began early this month, U.S. headquarters has shown increasing sensitivity to casualty reports and has begun de-emphasizing the frontier artillery duels.

The air pounding of Communist gun positions along the DMZ continued without letup.

Hoffa Trial Involved

Cosa Nostra Activities Probed in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Three grand juries are probing alleged Cosa Nostra activities in Louisiana and one of them has accused a contractor of bribing a governor's aide in an attempt to buy a new trial for Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa.

The East Baton Rouge Parish Grand Jury indicted New Orleans contractor D'Alton Smith Friday. The indictment said he tried to get an aide to Gov. John J. McKeithen to serve as a mid-dleman in an alleged $1-million scheme to get Hoffa a new trial. Smith, who divides his time between New Orleans and Los Angeles, is being sought by police.

The charge against him carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine. The alleged attempt to buy Hoffa out of prison, where he is serving a term for tampering with a jury, also is the subject of a federal grand jury investigation in New Orleans.

Subpoena Issued
In addition, the Orleans Parish Grand Jury in New Orleans has issued a subpoena for Carlos Marcello, described as the Cosa Nostra boss in Louisiana, to appear before it Thursday.

Marcello, a short, grey-haired man who lives in Metairie, a New Orleans suburb, was reported away on a trip. The subpoena was left with his wife. Smith was accused of offering $25,000 to Aubrey Young to set up for him a private meeting with Edward G. Partin, a Teamsters Union official in Baton Rouge.

Bribe Rejected
Partin is not easily accessible. He has had federal marshals as bodyguards since becoming a key government witness in Hoffa's 1962 conviction.

Partin said he rejected a $1-million bribe at the meeting, offered if he would change the testimony he gave at the trial and thus establish new grounds for a new trial.

Young resigned as McKeithen's aide in July. He spent two days as a state's witness, immune to prosecution, before the grand jury. Dist. Atty. Sargent Pitcher of Baton Rouge said Young agreed that he had arranged the meeting, at his home, between Partin and Smith. Pitcher said, however, that Young denied accepting $25,000 for the action.

Whether the money actually was paid would not change the charge. Louisiana law does not discriminate between bribery and attempted bribery.

Pitcher said the special session of the East Baton Rouge Parish Grand Jury resumes Monday. Grand jury sessions are secret.

Talks Condition Of Bombing Halt

Pope Joins Call for U.N. Role in War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Pope Paul VI has added his voice to calls by the United States and some small nations for active U.N. efforts to end the war in Vietnam. But the Soviet Union and France are opposed.

A letter from the Vatican made public here Friday said the pontiff offered to assist Secretary-General U Thant in working to halt the conflict. The letter expressed hope that the present General Assembly would help find a solution and spoke of "new initiatives" for peace.

A high Vatican source noted, however, that the Soviet Union has announced, since the letter was sent Sept. 22, plans to give North Vietnam more military aid. U.N. diplomats and Secretary of State Dean Rusk said they had heard of no new peace initiatives.

Policy Debate

Vietnam is not on the assembly's agenda but it has dominated the general policy debate, which on Friday completed its second week. The message from the spiritual leader of the world's more than 500 million Roman Catholics was believed certain to give a boost to the pressure for a U.N. role in Vietnam peace moves.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg gave the idea impetus last week, declaring in his policy speech that the United States "continues to seek active participation of the United Nations" in the search for a Vietnamese settlement.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko brushed off Goldberg's plea with the retort that "peace can be brought about in Vietnam only as a result of the withdrawal of the aggressors."

Responsibility of U.S.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville asserted in his policy speech that it would be "quite illusory" to place the Vietnam issue before the United Nations, contending that responsibility rests with the United States.

But many small nations said the United Nations should make the war its business even though the two Vietnams are not U.N. members.

Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel assailed those governments who contend the world organization is not qualified to deal with the issue.

Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Miki suggested that the countries of the world stop arguing over which side is right in Vietnam and join in a call on the combatants to move to the conference table.

Hanoi Seems to Reject LBJ Speech at Outset

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's latest enunciation of his Vietnam policy drew an apparent advance brushoff from Hanoi and mixed comment from Congress.

Even before the President spoke Friday night, offering to halt U.S. bombing of North Vietnam in return for prompt, "productive discussions," a high-ranking North Vietnamese official appeared to be turning thumbs down to such a proposal.

Vice Premier Le Thanh Nghi said in Peking that the United States "must unconditionally halt its bombing and other war acts against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam once and for all," withdraw its forces from South Vietnam and recognize the Viet Cong as "the sole genuine representative of the people of South Vietnam."

Assume Halt

Nghi's speech, reported by the New China News Agency and monitored in Tokyo, clashed specifically with Johnson's later assertion in his San Antonio, Tex., speech that the United States would "assume" that during any bombing halt the North Vietnamese would reciprocate by a military slowdown.

Congressional backers of the President's war policies applauded his speech while opponents rapped it.

And House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, hinting at an issue the GOP is expected to hit hard should Johnson seek reelection, appeared unconvinced the President spoke the whole truth.

Speaking to newsmen in Lancaster, Ohio, where he was attending a testimonial, Ford said he hoped Johnson was telling the public "the absolute truth about the many efforts the administration has made in seeking some accord with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong."

The GOP leader said he would support a halt in bombing—but only if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong scaled down their military activities.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, who has called for even stiffer U.S. bombing attacks on North Vietnam, said Johnson's speech was a lucid and proper description of the nation's posture.

But Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., a critic of administration policy, called the speech "only more of the same." He said domestic issues deserved priority over Vietnam.

Honest Speech

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen found the speech forthright and saw in it an open invitation to Hanoi to negotiate—but only with reciprocal guarantees.

The speech, said Dirksen, a backer of Johnson's war policies, "left open the door as wide as a 40-acre field to our willingness to sit down and negotiate as soon as we get some reciprocal guarantees if we relent in the struggle."

Another Vietnam policy backer, Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, called Johnson's speech persuasive but said the President had failed to answer whether U.S. military pressure will be increased if necessary to end the conflict. Miller, like Stennis, has favored escalating bombing of the North.

Another backer of Johnson's policy, Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., said the speech showed the issue "as the big picture rather than the little picture you get on the TV screen in the night news. He showed the issue was not only Vietnam but all of Eastern Asia."

War Policy Reasserted By Johnson

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has offered to stop bombing North Vietnam on only one stated condition: That it "lead promptly to productive discussions" aimed at a peaceful settlement of the war.

Reviewing Vietnam policy for a bipartisan gathering here — and for a nationwide television-radio audience — Johnson adopted language Friday night that sounded conciliatory, but did not weaken his expressed determination to see the war "through to an acceptable ending."

Thus, in talking about a possible bombing halt, he said:

"We of course assume that while discussions proceed, North Vietnam would not take advantage of the bombing cessation or limitation."

Seems Flexible

This rather vague phrasing, when contrasted with some earlier U.S. demands for a promise by Hanoi to scale down its side of the war in order to gain respite from American bombs, seemed more flexible.

One administration source said the softer language was not accidental; that the government—in both public and private messages to Hanoi—has been probing for a formula that would get talks started.

But he suggested that Johnson Turn to Page 3, Col. 1

Father Groppi Launches Vigil

Milwaukee Priest, Commandoes in Capital for 9 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. James E. Groppi of Milwaukee, despite opposition from a Negro leader, took part Friday in the beginning of a nine-day open housing vigil at the Lincoln Memorial here.

Father Groppi, a white Roman Catholic priest who has led marathon open housing marches at Milwaukee and acts as adviser to the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was in Washington with several of his Youth Council "commandoes."

Rufus (Catfish) Mayfield, chairman of Price, Inc., a federally-supported work training project for Negroes, confronted the priest and said he felt the Milwaukee civil rights movement should be led by a Negro.

Mayfield urged Father Groppi and the commandoes not to participate in the vigil, which is planned to run from 8 a.m. to midnight through Oct. 7.

But, the priest and commandoes left Mayfield and led about 80 persons, many of them volunteers for the nine-day vigil, on a march to the Lincoln Memorial.

The vigil is sponsored by the greater Washington Catholic Churches, the Catholic Inter-Racial Council of Washington, the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity and the Human Relations Division of the Methodist Church.

Father Groppi and the commandoes left the marchers to meet with Sens. Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire, and Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, all D-Wis., at Capitol Hill.

85 at Brillion Session for School Boards

Discussion of Salary Negotiations Heads Agenda

BRILLION — About 85 school personnel attended discussions of school board-school employee negotiations at the regional Wisconsin Association of School Boards (WASB) meeting here recently.

Included in the program was a report by George Tipler, Winnebago, WASB executive secretary, on new legislation-current issues.

Attending were district administrators, area board members, school business officials, custodians, and representatives of the Cooperative Educational Service Agency. This session is one of 16 regional meetings being conducted by WASB Sept. 18 to Oct. 19.

A custodian clinic was conducted by Myron Huth, business manager of the Kimberly Public Schools. Custodians reviewed school lighting problems through Public Service Corporation representative D. E. Madden's presentation, "Lights On." Tom Garrow, Brillion High School student, Tom McDonough, Reedsville High School teacher, and Darrel Ffirick, principal of Kiel Public Schools, presented a panel discussion, "A Personal Approach to School Maintenance Work."

"High School Vocational Education on the Move" was discussed by Robert Ristau of the State Department of Public Instruction. Harry Drier, coordinator of the Brillion Cooperative Vocational School, explained how the pilot program began, and headed a panel discussion group of Don Hepler, Brillion Iron Works, Inc., David Boettcher, former student, and Gaylord Unbehaun, superintendent of the Brillion Public Schools. The latter three voiced viewpoints on the vocational school from an industrialist, student-worker, and supervisor's angle, respectively.

Deer Party Permit Sales Lag at Waupaca

WAUPACA — Thursday's first day sale of deer-hunting party permits dropped this year to 391 compared with the nearly 600 that were sold last year on opening day.

Prior years the sale was held at the clerk's office at the courthouse but because of the large lines of hunters usually waiting to purchase permits, the sale was moved this year to the armory.

A line which began to form in front of the armory by late morning, grew to approximately 200 hunters by the time the sale was started at 1 p.m. A staff of seven clerks were present and the line quickly diminished. By 2:30 p.m. permits were available without waiting.

1,590 Permits
This year 1,590 party permits are available. Of these, 580 were available for Unit 62; 410 for Unit 63; 360 for Unit 65 and 240 for Unit 66. At the close of the sale, Thursday 121 permits had been sold for Unit 62; 73 for Unit 63; 126 for Unit 65, and 71 for Unit 66.

Remaining permits will be sold at the armory today from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon. After that they will be available at the county clerk's office during regular office hours.

company and did not visit with people in the neighborhood.

They said the Schmidts had another boarder living with them until about a year ago when he went to King to reside.

"He was a nice man and came back here some months ago to visit," commented Saglauer.

Built Garages
Saglauer said Schmidt built two garages about 10 years ago, one for himself and the other for Saglauer.

The Schmidts reportedly got rid of their old black car about six years ago.

Saglauer also told of how Mrs. Schmidt threw what appeared to be a large bone onto his property over the weekend, but then disappeared.

"She was digging in her garden and almost fell over the fence the other day," he added.

Saglauer and others said that years ago Schmidt had been "a real friendly man, but suddenly changed."

They said his wife "never would bid you the time of day."

None of the neighbors could remember hearing any unusual sounds from the Schmidt residence in recent days.

But they did say that the basement light had been burning for several nights.

Rudy Breitung, 313 N. Division St., who lives immediately south of the Schmidt home, said, "I'm so shocked I don't know what to say or not to say."

He said the Schmidts had purchased the house about 15 years ago and that often Mrs. Schmidt would become belligerent and appeared to want to argue with Breitung's late wife.

Lights Burning
"I knew there was something going on in the basement next door because I could see the lights still burning early in the morning," Breitung said.

Breitung told how his sister-in-law, Mrs. Jennie Buchert, tried to make conversation with Mrs. Schmidt when she saw her near the house last week, remarking that she had nice looking flowers and tomatoes in her garden.

"Monday and Tuesday morning of this week we had small bags of tomatoes and a small bouquet of flowers at our rear door," Breitung disclosed.

Ald. Al Stoegebauer (4th) said he often went door-to-door but never was able to talk to Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt.

And there was a report today that two women at the scene where a part of a body was found in a College Avenue ravine Monday morning told police of seeing a woman bearing Mrs. Schmidt's description in the crowd and walking through the alley where an extensive police investigation was underway.

She was carrying a black shopping bag.

Mouth of Gulf Feels Flooding Of Rio Grande

150,000 Residents Of Brownsville Brace for Cresr

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Rio Grande, which left destruction and human misery in its wake, hurled its floodwaters today at the mouth of the Gulf of Mexico where the trouble began 10 days ago when Hurricane Beulah hit.

The river was at flood stage in the Rio Grande Valley from Rio Grande City eastward for almost 200 miles, although it was receding in some spots.

The 153,000 residents of the Brownsville, Tex.-Matamoros, Mexico area at the Rio Grande's mouth braced for the floodcrest, expected sometime today.

Flood stage is 18 feet at Brownsville. The Weather Bureau said the river had reached 16.58 feet early today.

Upstream, residents began returning to their silt-covered homes in the beginning of a massive cleanup.

In the Harlingen area streets were covered with one to five inches of silt and mud. Landscaped yards were mud pits. Some houses that cost up to $65,000 had been filled with water up to the roof. Residents with brooms and mops were hard at work making their homes fit for habitation.

Only a few homes remained flooded in the extreme southwest portion of Harlingen where the Arroyo Colorado went on a tear after Beulah dumped heavy rain on the area.

The International Boundary and Water Commission warned residents between the banks and the levees at Brownsville to flee if water spills over the main channel.

The Weather Bureau was having difficulty estimating progress of the Rio Grande's crest because Mexican authorities were diverting unknown quantities of water into canals between Progreso, Mexico and Brownsville.

The lowest point of levees at Matamoros was 23 feet. The Weather Bureau said 25 feet was the lowest point of the levees at Brownsville.

The Texas death toll from Beulah stood at 12. Mexico listed 45 persons dead or missing.

Disease from pollution and mosquitoes was a threat to U.S. and Mexican residents. Air Force planes were spraying the valley against the mosquitoes. The project is expected to take at least a month.

President Johnson declared 24 counties in South Texas major disaster areas after a tour of parts of the Rio Grande.

Insurance adjusters are at work to determine the extent of Beulah's damage, already estimated at more than $1 billion.

Headquarters Under Attack

Reds Shelling Delta

SAIGON (AP)—The Communists opened up with mortars in the Mekong delta south of Saigon today, shelling the U.S. 9th Infantry Division headquarters—the main American base in the area—and four South Vietnamese camps.

Sixteen Americans were wounded in the attack, which followed intensified U.S. air strikes deep into North Vietnam. Air Force planes blasted the frequently hit MIG airfield at Hoa Lac west of Hanoi, and carrier-based Navy pilots flew through surface-to-air missile barrages to strike a bridge inside the port of Haiphong.

The shelling in the Mekong Delta began Friday night on isolated government outposts near the cities of My Tho and Can Tho. Within minutes, help came from Air Force "Spookies"—old twin-engine C47s specially equipped to suppress night attacks by dropping flares and then opening up with quick-firing Gatling guns.

The attacks on the South Vietnamese posts continued sporadically during the night. Early this morning the Red gunners shifted to the big U.S. camp at Dong Tam, 42 miles southwest of Saigon.

The Spookies unloaded nearly 50,000 rounds on suspected Red mortar positions. At the northern end of South Vietnam, North Vietnamese mortarmen fired about 100 shells on the district headquarters town of Hai Lang, about 25 miles below the demilitarized zone.

Communist infantrymen then tried to storm through wire barricades but were beaten back and lost 17 dead, military spokesmen said. South Vietnamese losses were called light.

DMZ Light To the northwest the U.S. Marine outpost of Con Thien was under fire. It has been every day this month but U.S. headquarters did not specify how many shells came in. It said only that about 128 Communist rounds fell on American positions below the DMZ. This could include four big posts and other lesser ones in the area. They are guarding possible Red invasion routes to the northern provinces.

Since the heavy shelling of Con Thien began early this month, U.S. headquarters has shown increasing sensitivity to casualty reports and has begun de-emphasizing the frontier artillery duels.

The air pounding of Communist gun positions along the DMZ continued without letup.

Hoffa Trial Involved

Cosa Nostra Activities Probed in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Three grand juries are probing alleged Cosa Nostra activities in Louisiana and one of them has accused a contractor of bribing a governor's aide in an attempt to buy a new trial for Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa.

The East Baton Rouge Parish Grand Jury indicted New Orleans contractor D'Alton Smith Friday. The indictment said he tried to get an aide to Gov. John J. McKeithen to serve as a middleman in an alleged $1-million scheme to get Hoffa a new trial.

Smith, who divides his time between New Orleans and Los Angeles, is being sought by police. The charge against him carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine. The alleged attempt to buy Hoffa out of prison, where he is serving a term for tampering with a jury, also is the subject of a federal grand jury investigation in New Orleans.

Subpoena Issued

In addition, the Orleans Parish Grand Jury in New Orleans has issued a subpoena for Carlos Marcello, described as the Cosa Nostra boss in Louisiana, to appear before it Thursday. Marcello, a short, grey-haired man who lives in Metairie, a New Orleans suburb, was reported away on a trip. The subpoena was left with his wife. Smith was accused of offering $25,000 to Aubrey Young to set up for him a private meeting with Edward G. Partin, a Teamsters Union official in Baton Rouge.

Partin is not easily accessible. He has had federal marshals as bodyguards since becoming a key government witness in Hoffa's 1962 conviction.

Partin said he rejected a $1-million bribe at the meeting, offered if he would change the testimony he gave at the trial and thus establish new grounds for a new trial.

Young resigned as McKeithen's aide in July. He spent two days as a state's witness, immune to prosecution, before the grand jury.

Dist. Atty. Sargent Pitcher of Baton Rouge said Young agreed that he had arranged the meeting, at his home, between Partin and Smith. Pitcher said, however, that Young denied accepting $25,000 for the action.

Whether the money actually was paid would not change the charge. Louisiana law does not discriminate between bribery and attempted bribery.

Pitcher said the special session of the East Baton Rouge Parish Grand Jury resumes Monday. Grand jury sessions are secret.

Talks Condition Of Bombing Halt

Pope Joins Call for U.N. Role in War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Pope Paul VI has added his voice to calls by the United States and some small nations for active U.N. efforts to end the war in Vietnam. But the Soviet Union and France are opposed.

A letter from the Vatican made public here Friday said the pontiff offered to assist Secretary-General U Thant in working to halt the conflict. The letter expressed hope that the present General Assembly would help find a solution and spoke of "new initiatives" for peace.

A high Vatican source noted, however, that the Soviet Union has announced, since the letter was sent Sept. 22, plans to give North Vietnam more military aid. U.N. diplomats and Secretary of State Dean Rusk said they had heard of no new peace initiatives.

Policy Debate

Vietnam is not on the assembly's agenda but it has dominated the general policy debate, which on Friday completed its second week. The message from the spiritual leader of the world's more than 500 million Roman Catholics was believed certain to give a boost to the pressure for a U.N. role in Vietnam peace moves.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg gave the idea impetus last week, declaring in his policy speech that the United States "continues to seek active participation of the United Nations" in the search for a Vietnam settlement.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko brushed off Goldberg's plea with the retort that "peace can be brought about in Vietnam only as a result of the withdrawal of the aggressors."

Responsibility of U.S.

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville asserted in his policy speech that it would be "quite illusory" to place the Vietnam issue before the United Nations, contending that responsibility rests with the United States.

But many small nations said the United Nations should make the war its business even though the two Vietnams are not U.N. members.

Belgian Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel assailed those governments who contend the world organization is not qualified to deal with the issue.

Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Miki suggested that the countries of the world stop arguing over which side is right in Vietnam and join in a call on the combatants to move to the conference table.

Hanoi Seems to Reject LBJ Speech at Outset

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's latest enunciation of his Vietnam policy drew an apparent advance brushoff from Hanoi and mixed comment from Congress.

Even before the President spoke Friday night, offering to halt U.S. bombing of North Vietnam in return for prompt, "productive discussions," a high-ranking North Vietnamese official appeared to be turning thumbs down to such a proposal.

Vice Premier Le Thanh Nghi said in Peking that the United States "must unconditionally halt its bombing and other war acts against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam once and for all," withdraw its forces from South Vietnam and recognize the Viet Cong as "the sole genuine representative of the people of South Vietnam."

Assume Halt

Nghi's speech, reported by the New China News Agency and monitored in Tokyo, clashed specifically with Johnson's later assertion in his San Antonio, Tex., speech that the United States would "assume" that during any bombing halt the North Vietnamese would reciprocate by a military slowdown.

Congressional backers of the President's war policies applauded his speech while opponents rapped it. And House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford, hinting at an issue the GOP is expected to hit hard should Johnson seek reelection, appeared unconvinced the President spoke the whole truth.

Speaking to newsmen in Lancaster, Ohio, where he was attending a testimonial, Ford said he hoped Johnson was telling the public "the absolute truth about the many efforts the administration has made in seeking some accord with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong."

The GOP leader said he would support a halt in bombing—but only if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong scaled down their military activities.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, who has called for even stiffer U.S. bombing attacks on North Vietnam, said Johnson's speech was a lucid and proper description of the nation's posture.

But Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., a critic of administration policy, called the speech "only more of the same." He said domestic issues deserved priority over Vietnam.

Honest Speech

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen found the speech forthright and saw in it an open invitation to Hanoi to negotiate—but only with reciprocal guarantees.

The speech, said Dirksen, a backer of Johnson's war policies, "left open the door as wide as a 40-acre field to our willingness to sit down and negotiate as soon as we get some reciprocal guarantees if we relent in the struggle."

Another Vietnam policy backer, Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, called Johnson's speech persuasive but said the President had failed to answer whether U.S. military pressure will be increased if necessary to end the conflict. Miller, like Stennis, has favored escalating bombing of the North.

Another backer of Johnson's policy, Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., said the speech showed the issue "as big picture rather than the little picture you get on the TV screen in the night news. He showed the issue was not only Vietnam but all of Eastern Asia."

Keller Mum on Schmidt Case

What did police find in the house at 319 N. Division St., where the body of an elderly man apparently was hacked to pieces?

A list of articles found in the George Schmidt home probably will not be made public until — and if — a charge is made in connection with the discovery of crudely dissected parts of a man believed to be the 82-year-old Schmidt.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller Friday afternoon refused a request by a newsmen who asked that a list of evidence found in the Schmidt home be made public.

War Policy Reasserted By Johnson

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has offered to stop bombing North Vietnam on only one stated condition: That it "lead promptly to productive discussions" aimed at a peaceful settlement of the war.

Reviewing Vietnam policy for a bipartisan gathering here — and for a nationwide television-radio audience—Johnson adopted language Friday night that sounded conciliatory, but did not weaken his expressed determination to see the war through to an acceptable ending.

Thus, in talking about a possible bombing halt, he said: "We of course assume that while discussions proceed, North Vietnam would not take advantage of the bombing cessation or limitation."

Seems Flexible

This rather vague phrasing, when contrasted with some earlier U.S. demands for a promise by Hanoi to scale down its side of the war in order to gain respite from American bombs, seemed more flexible.

One administration source said the softer language was not accidental; that the government—in both public and private messages to Hanoi—has been probing for a formula that would get talks started.

But he suggested that Johnson Turn to Page 3, Col. 1

Father Groppi Launches Vigil

MILWAUKEE Priest, Commandoes in Capital for 9 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. James E. Groppi of Milwaukee, despite opposition from a Negro leader, took part Friday in the beginning of a nine-day open housing vigil at the Lincoln Memorial here.

Father Groppi, a white Roman Catholic priest who has led marathon open housing marches at Milwaukee and acts as adviser to the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was in Washington with several of his Youth Council "commandoes."

Rufus (Catfish) Mayfield, chairman of Price, Inc., a federally-supported work training project for Negroes, confronted the priest and said he felt the Milwaukee civil rights movement should be led by a Negro.

Mayfield urged Father Groppi and the commandoes not to participate in the vigil, which is planned to run from 8 a.m. to midnight through Oct. 7.

But, the priest and commandoes left Mayfield and led about 80 persons, many of them volunteers for the nine-day vigil, on a march to the Lincoln Memorial.

The vigil is sponsored by the greater Washington Catholic Churches, the Catholic Interracial Council of Washington, the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity and the Human Relations Division of the Methodist Church.

Father Groppi and the commandoes left the marchers to meet with Sens. Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire, and Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, all D-Wis., at Capitol Hill.

Bombing Halt Must Yield Negotiations

son's "we assume" statement amounted to putting Hanoi on notice once again that the United States would expect something more than talks if it were to stop the bombing.

The source said U.S. policy thus remains basically unchanged.

No Proposal Accepted

Certainly Johnson held out no hope of an early solution. He reminded his frequently-applauding listeners that "Hanoi has not accepted any of these proposals" for peace talks in the past.

But the Chief Executive emphasized that "we and our South Vietnamese allies are wholly prepared to negotiate now." He said: "I am ready to talk with Ho Chi Minh and other chiefs of state concerned tomorrow."

"I am ready to have Secretary Rusk meet with their foreign minister tomorrow."

"I am ready to send a trusted representative to any spot on this earth to talk in public or private with any spokesman for Hanoi."

While emphasizing peace efforts in his address—delivered before 1,600 delegates to the National Legislative Conference of State Officials—Johnson put approximately equal stress on U.S. determination to persevere in Vietnam.

"First, we must not mislead our enemy," he said. "Let him not think that debate and dissent will produce wavering and withdrawal. For I can assure you they won't. Let him not think that protests will produce surrender. Because they won't. Let him not think that he will wait us out. For he won't."

"Second, we will provide all that our brave men require to do the job that must be done—and that job's going to be done."

This last statement drew a loud burst of applause.

Johnson also was applauded lustily when, after saying recent history "strongly suggests" a Communist victory in South Vietnam would lead to a Communist conquest of all Southeast Asia and increase the possibility of World War III, he went on:

Risk Security

"As President of the United States, I am not prepared to gamble on the chance that it is not so. I am not prepared to risk the security—indeed, the survival—of this American nation on mere hope and wishful thinking. I am convinced that by seeing this struggle through now, we are reducing the chances of a larger war—perhaps a nuclear war. And I would rather stand in Vietnam, in our time, and by meeting this danger now and facing up to it, thereby reduce the danger for our children and grandchildren."

While conceding "there are many sincere and patriotic Americans who harbor doubts" about the wisdom of the war, Johnson said, "the key to all we have done is our own security." At the same time, he quoted leaders of seven Asian and Pacific nations as supporting American involvement. And he quoted former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy to back up his argument that South Vietnam's future is of great importance to the United States.

Johnson also argued there has been steady forward movement in South Vietnam, militarily and in promoting constitutional government.

"The campaigns of the last year drove the enemy from many of their major interior bases. The military victory almost within Hanoi's grasp in 1965 has now been denied. The grip of the Viet Cong on the people is being broken."

Again there was applause.

Johnson argued that North Vietnam persists in the war because it still hopes "the people of the United States will not see the struggle through to the very end."

He said Hanoi does not understand democracy; that it mistakes dissent for disloyalty, in promoting a rejection of policy, a few committees for a country and individual speeches for public policy. But he said Americans have strength and perseverance.

"It is a tragedy," he said, "that they must discover these qualities in the American people through a bloody war. And, soon or late, they will discover them...we shall press forward."

The price of American efforts in Vietnam has been heavy, said Johnson. "But the price of not having made them and seen them through in my judgment would have been vastly greater."

of the opinion that until such time as a complaint is made and presented to the court, these proceedings are not public record and, therefore, members of the press are not entitled to view them."

Cites statutes

A radio newsman cited a section of the Wisconsin statutes which he said indicated that once a search warrant has been executed or filed, it becomes public record. On that basis, he asked to see the return on the warrant. Judge Keller again refused.

Dist. Atty. Nick F. Schaefer had said Friday morning that he thought the warrant return would be public information, although he indicated to newsmen that he did not favor making it public.

Schaefer told the court that the items obtained from 319 N. Division St., since early Thursday "are in the hands of police and the State Crime Laboratory."

Schaefer still gave no indication about the filing of charges.

Schmidt's wife, Marie, 80, remains in St. Elizabeth Hospital where she was taken at 1 a.m. Thursday after police said she apparently attempted suicide in the basement of her home.

Police Chief Earl O. Wolff said that he ordered an end to a 24-hour watch by detectives at Mrs. Schmidt's room. A detective had been at the room since she was taken to the hospital by ambulance. Wolff said there no longer was a need for a detective there.

Police have not questioned Mrs. Schmidt about the disappearance of her husband and the finding of the dissected body. And Wolff indicated he did not know when her doctor would allow police to talk to her.

Wolff said he notified one of Mrs. Schmidt's sons, in California, that his mother had attempted suicide and was in the hospital, "not in serious condition."

Many Drugs Have No Competitors, Nelson Reveals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., chairman of a Senate small business subcommittee, said Friday testimony taken at a committee inquiry had clearly shown that there is no competition on many drugs in the retail market.

Nelson protested what he called "a fantastic disparity" between prices drug companies charge retail druggists compared to those charged government agencies and big city hospitals.

He introduced a chart showing that prices charged druggists by the Eli Lilly Co. were as much as 873 per cent higher than those paid by the Defense Department.

Lilly vice president Henry F. DeBoest testified that as a salesman he had never experienced any lack of competition. He told newsmen that quantity sales to government and special consideration as a patriotic service accounted for the differences.

Racial Tensions Hurt Business

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The executive director of the Wisconsin Restaurant and Motel Association said Friday downtown Milwaukee restaurants and night clubs have suffered a sharp decline in business because racial unrest in the city has made people afraid to enter the area at night.

Elmer Conforti said a survey conducted by his office shows business has dropped off 30 to 35 per cent among the 200 operators polled.

Conforti also said 88 per cent of those polled reported business had not returned to normal since rioting broke out at the start of August.

How Large Is Your Space Bubble?

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has advocated that Americans make more effort to encourage rural residents to stay on their homesteads in the country and to persuade many who live in cities to get out of town. Mrs. Lyndon Johnson's recent visit to farm areas of the Midwest may have been part of such an Administration program. Whether or not the idea is feasible, it is a good one.

Anthropologist Edward Hall of Northwestern University writes in Horizon magazine that human beings need a certain amount of space just as they need food and water. Every organism "no matter how simple or complex, has around it a sacred bubble of space, a bit of mobile territoriality which only a few other organisms are allowed to penetrate and then only for short periods of time." Man's may differ in size according to individuals and to cultures but "if a man's bubble is crushed, or dented or pushed out of shape, he suffers virtually as much damage as though his body was crushed or dented or pushed out of shape."

It is difficult to conceive that ten people packed in one or two rooms, whether in a city or the country, really have enough space. And it well could be that some of our problems in the cities are due directly to the human reaction against a personal invasion of that "bubble."

There have been some well reasoned arguments against some of the urban renewal plans in which only a new form of tenement replaces the old. Some sociologists have pointed to the ease of crime in high rise apartment buildings, increased because apartment dwellers are so remote from each other. Entirely aside from slum areas, the desire of the city dweller for individual independence sometimes get translated into opposition to becoming involved in the concerns of the neighbors even when lives are in danger. The small town gossip may be annoying and carry the threat of thought control but it may be preferable to the isolation of the apartment dweller in the large cities.

There are moves on a small scale when residents of both large cities and more airy suburbs seek more land and expanse on old farms. Wider spreading out of industry in various parts of the United States encourages such moves. But it hardly touches the slum dwellers who need room and space so desperately.

Men and women who must live in close proximity in prisons or even in the armed forces or dormitories simply do not act the same as when they have privacy and room. The explosions in the cities may be caused primarily by resentment against prejudice, lack of jobs and other signs of discrimination. But the close packed quarters undoubtedly contribute fuel for the flames.

New Garbage-Trash Collections

Another municipal improvement — combined garbage and trash collections on a once-a-week basis — went into effect in Appleton this week and represents another stride forward in bettering city services and attempting to realize economies.

It would behoove Appleton residents to cooperate with the Street-Sanitation Department and follow the instructions that have been given with relation to the new collections system. A pilot study has indicated it will work as it has in other Midwest cities.

There is likely to be some second guessing on the merits of the combined collections, but once given a fair chance, the system should prove itself. Anyone with complaints or suggestions can forward them to the Department of Public Works at the City Hall.

In the meantime, city officials are to be congratulated for recognizing that trash — rather than garbage — makes up a major share of the municipal collections, and coming to the realization they can be combined. Full cooperation of householders should make for a smooth transition.

Progress in India Is Slow

The United States has invested almost $7 billion in the nation of India in the hopes of helping that country develop as a stable democratic regime, in contrast to the communism of Red China. After twenty years of independence India is anything but a successful going concern although the advances have been considerable.

Industrial production has increased 150 per cent with steel and electrical power up four times that in 1947. There are three times as many children in school as when independence began and even food grain output has increased almost 62 per cent. India has survived border wars with Pakistan and Red China and has conducted several elections without complete chaos in a land where hysteria is an everyday occurrence. Despite some restrictive laws, Indians obviously have far more political and personal freedom than do the masses in Communist China.

But the anniversary of independence was not a time for rejoicing in India. The late Jawaharlal Nehru's dream of "ending poverty, ignorance, disease and inequality of opportunity" has merely been started and there is beginning to be doubt in the minds of Indian leaders that it can ever be accomplished.

There are a lot of reasons but a major one is the failure thus far to encourage real population control. There were 330 million people in India in 1947 and there are almost 500 million today. Contraceptive information has not been successful and some new leaders are pushing the far more extreme proposal of voluntary sterilization of fathers after they have had two children. India, like so many newly independent nations, stressed spectacular industrial progress to the detriment of its agricultural needs. Religious traditions and customs have handicapped new ideas. Even the allegiance to socialism cut back on foreign investments. An unrealistic effort to be the leader of a "third force" in world politics meant embarrassment when border wars broke out and India's military seizure of Goa from Portugal, whatever were the relevance of its claims, seriously damaged its world image as a peacemaker and objective mediator.

But if India, because of its home grown failures and its inability to continue to draw foreign assistance especially from the United States, falls to communism, all our efforts to keep South Vietnam free of Communist control will appear puny. We must continue to lend aid to India, both in money and in advice and help in how to use their resources. Its problems are immense and India cannot solve them alone.

More and More Planes In Air Posing Crisis

BY HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Our skies are getting more crowded every day.

Each day more people board more airliners, more are taking flying lessons, more airplanes are winging from factories.

For 1967, passenger traffic on commercial airliners will total 128 million. Ten years from now, the Federal Aviation Agency estimates, there will be 352 million passengers — nearly three times the present number. A Senate committee heard testimony that the figure may even be 456 million.

The growth in non-airline, non-military flying will be just as spectacular. In 1965, manufacturers of civil aircraft produced 12,646 planes. The figure in 1966 was 16,404 — valued at more than $2 billion.

A forecast of 104,000 non-airline, non-military planes in 1967 is sure to be exceeded. By 1977, that total is expected to be 180,000 and will include 8,000 turbine aircraft, compared with 950 this year.

JUMBOS ARE COMING
In the next three years the first jumbos — airliners that carry nearly 500 passengers — will take to the skies. Despite the increased seating space on the jumbos, the forecast is that airliners will increase from this year's 2,337 to 2,875 in 1972 and 3,500 in 1977.

All this has caused mounting concern for ground facilities to handle them, safety facilities to guide them, airports to land them.

The FAA has ordered a sweeping revision of air safety rules — including easier access to exits, better evacuation procedures, and improved marking and lighting of exits — aimed at saving more lives in airline crashes. The new rules are expected to cost the airlines and manufacturers almost $2 billion in the next few years, but passengers are expected to pay most of the cost.

Airport development costs are expected to run $6 billion in the next 10 years. President Johnson has called for a broad new program to cope with the rising air traffic. He has suggested a plan that would spend an estimated $5 billion for new facilities, equipment and additional personnel and said he would ask the airlines, passengers and communities to share the cost of the program.

Even without any increase, flying is at a crisis point. There is mounting clamor to bar private planes from busy commercial airports where they have the same privileges as the big airline jets. But airports are paid for by all citizens and the air is free and some sort of compromise must be reached.

O'HARE IS NO. 1

O'Hare Airport in Chicago, the nation's busiest, had 478,644 takeoffs and landings last year by airliners — an average of 64 each hour. And it had 78,124 general aviation craft landing and taking off — an average of 9 each hour.

John F. Kennedy International in New York had 390,898 takeoffs and landings last year, an average of 45 an hour.

In all, 17 airports had more than 100,000 airline takeoffs and landings last year. They were in order, O'Hare, Kennedy, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta, Washington National, Dallas Love Field, Miami, New York LaGuardia (N.Y.), Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit, Wayne, Cleveland-Hopkins, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Denver.

Others in the top 25 are Kansas City Municipal, Honolulu, Houston, Minneapolis-St. Paul, New Orleans, Covington (Cincinnati), Baltimore International and San Juan (Puerto Rico) International.

The busiest airport in the country in total operations, behind Chicago's O'Hare, is Opa Locka, Fla. The airport, near Miami, handled 546,985 general aviation aircraft last year, an average of 62 an hour. It had virtually no airline traffic, however.

Repeatedly, well-meaning, over-zealous, over-zealous folks try to sway me with "Aw, Zimmerman . . . you don't have to campaign! Everybody knows you!" . . . and in a split second I am reminded of the conventioneer, age 35, eligible to vote for 14 years . . . whose first question upon meeting me was, "Is your job elective?" Everybody DOES NOT know Zimmerman.

Which, in turn, easily and quickly explains why I always have and always will "run scared" and never take any campaign for granted. There is no one pat "campaign technique" for any one candidate. As able, dynamic Ody I. Fish, chairman of the Republican Party of Wisconsin, advised me wisely and rightly in my last campaign, "Remember the song made world-famous by song-belter Ethel Merman — 'Doing what comes naturally!' The things you say, Bob, and do that fit you — might be all wrong for Jack Olson. You couldn't campaign like Warren Knowles — he has a style and an approach that is terrific for him — but it wouldn't fit you at all." Ody is right! Every man has and makes his own image — and that "image" (although an oft-misused, overused word) is "campaign technique." My advice is "Be yourself." Don't copy or try to ape someone else. My folksy, human interest, down-to-earth "Campaign technique" has helped keep me the state's No. 1 vote-getter — but that doesn't prove for an instant that my "campaign technique" would, if adopted by another candidate, make him a sure winner.

NEEDS PERSONAL TOUCH

I am firmly convinced that nothing, but nothing beats "the personal touch." A long speech never made a vote or a friend. The "personal touch" — which is just another way of saying "a close, sincere, consistent interest in the public" must be steady — never off and-on like a light switch.

It is politically unhealthy for the politician (be he "aspiring" or incumbent) to read his own newspaper clippings — it may affect his hat hand. And to prove my point — let me conclude my theme with an experience of mine at a 1967 county fair. During my tour of this county fair — (I toured over two dozen in 1966!) — I stuck out my hand and said, as I have to countless thousands since entering public life in 1956, "I'm Bob Zimmerman secretary of state." Without a change of expression, an unimpressed, unsmiling lady snapped, "What's your real name?" For once a Zimmerman was speechless — and I only found breath enough to meekly repeat my original sentence.

At this point the cold-eyed lady gave me a chilly "once-over" from head to toe — and as she stalked off she quipped — "Oh, I'm sorry, I thought you were Pat Lucey!" This kind of incident is good for all politicians — and instead of depressing, upsetting or annoying me — it only challenges me to work harder at making myself better known to the approximately 4,300,000 Wisconsinites who make my wonderful job possible.

Here Are Some Ways LBJ Could Cut Budget

Editor, Post-Crescent:

President Johnson's proposal for what he calls a sur-tax is really a slur-tax, because it is a slur on the American public. While boosting domestic spending, LBJ is trying to peddle to the people the idea that a surtax is necessary for the war effort. While discussing on the sorry expense of warfare, LBJ is shoveling money into his patronage program.

If there is a wartime need to sacrifice, then the federal government shouldn't be doing some of the things it is doing. Perhaps one place to start would be the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities. If LBJ is serious about the need for sacrifices to finance the war, there is, for instance, a $10,000 federal grant to Bryn Mawr College for "Excavations in Tuscany."

Under this romantic sounding project, "students from various American institutions will participate in diggings that will reveal the layout and development of a 6th Century B.C. Etruscan town." Interesting? Yes. Necessary in wartime? There are others:

The Minnesota Historical Society will get $5,000 to study the fur trade between 1770 and 1820.

Smith College will get $6,952 for a project to "edit the unpublished memoirs of the Spaniard Oviedo (1478-1557)."

The University of North Carolina will get $17,295 to dig around in the ruins of Winchester, England, to detail the "changing character of the city of Winchester from its origin in the Iron Age to its emergence as a Victorian City."

UCLA will get $15,000 to "support the preparation of a dictionary of popular beliefs and superstitions." This tome, the agency says, "will be a valuable reference for the whole field of folklore, magic and witchcraft."

A $7,500 grant will finance "Research on the Works of Gregory of Nyssa and the Later Greek Philosophical Tradition of Which He is a Part."

The list goes on and on. True, most of these grants are small, just as most of the individual patronage jobs in the poverty war are small. But they add up to millions.

Domestic expenditure increases are outstripping increases in military expenditures because the "Great Society" has not attempted to establish priorities for spending tax dollars, but has, instead, let the whole spending program build into an avalanche.

With people spending tax dollars digging around in English ruins, studying witchcraft, and publishing old Spanish memoirs, LBJ is hard put to install a sense of urgency about his 10 per cent surtax proposal. The public's leg can be pulled just so far, then it kicks back.

Coffee House Changed Troubled Youth's Life

Editor, Post-Crescent,

This letter is a tribute to the Shangri-la Coffee House. A lot of people knew me . . . down at the police station! I always thought it was fun to go along with the "group". But then someone awakened me. The recent opening of the Shangri-la Coffee House gave me a place and an atmosphere to think away from the noise of other youth centers.

There I could think, I could evaluate, I could change and grow. It is hard to believe now, after using the Shangri-la, that I could be thrilled by reckless behavior. At one time I defaced park pavilions and schools. I guess I didn't know people very well. I didn't know that parks were meant for folks to enjoy. I was selfish.

Things are great now! At the Coffee House we sit and chat. We sip coffee and talk over life eating a sundae. Our talents are being used there. Classmates with guitars can sing their own songs. They can be thrilled with everyone enjoying the Shangri-la Coffee House is for juniors and seniors in high school. I have seen so many new faces there. It helps to extend our friendship beyond schools. High school youth from Kimberly, Oshkosh, Kaukauna, Menasha and Little Chute use it. Shallow prejudices existing between Appleton schools seem to vanish at the Shangri-la. Small talk easily starts up between youth from Appleton East, Appleton West, Xavier and Fox Valley Lutheran. Youth groups from various churches in town freely mix.

These are the things I think of and see at the Shangri-la. Last year, Bill Zelinski asked for a coffee house. Adult youth directors voted it down. But today he is graduated, and going to service. He never saw the Shangri-la in use. But he really can be named the unsung hero who got it going. I am reaping the harvest of the Shangri-la he wanted. I am getting all the thing that fellows and gals my age want. I helped built it, and the Shangri-la has built me in return!

Two-Time Loser Sees Light; Thinks Ann Makes Sense

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN LANDERS: About the worst thing that can happen to a guy has happened to me. Not once, but twice. I am 17 years old and two girls I have been going with have told me within the last week that they are pregnant. One girl is 16, a real sweet kid (but very dumb), and nobody I would want to spend the rest of my life with. The other girl is 18, has been around a lot and while I have taken her out several times, so have 50 other guys.

I have one year of high school left so don't suggest marriage to the sweet kid because I wouldn't think of it. And please don't tell me to talk to my folks because my mother would have a heart attack and my dad would kill me.

I used to think your column was square but I am beginning to believe your advice makes a lot of sense. Please tell me what to do because I'm fading fast. —Dubble Trubble

DEAR D.T.: Your parents are going to know about this — either from you or from the parents of one or both girls. I believe it would be better if you told them.

I am not suggesting marriage, but I am suggesting that you learn what your legal responsibilities are and live up to them. I hope this letter shakes up a few thousand guys out there who are playing games with live bombshells. How about paying some attention to my square advice, fellas?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you have room in your column for a lesson that might help some of your readers make a decision. It has to do with relatives in business. Several years ago my husband and his brother went to work for their father. It was a good business, but there was so much in-fighting and aggravation that my husband decided it wasn't worth it. When my husband announced he was quitting to start a business of his own, everyone said, "You're a fool. You'll regret it. Your brother will inherit everything."

Well, they were half right. His brother did inherit everything — ulcers, migraine headaches and a nervous condition of the eyes. My sister-in-law has told me 50 times that she wished her husband had quit when mine did. The old man has become more tyrannical and utterly impossible through the years. Even though he will soon be 69 he has made it clear that he intends to run the business till they carry him off on a stretcher. I think they will carry off his son first.

My husband and I have not had an easy time but we are comfortable and happy. We enjoy good health and life is fun. I don't know where we got the courage and the good sense to get out when we did, but I thank God for it. — Mr. and Mrs. Content

Dear Mr. and Mrs.: I am happy for you and sad for your husband's brother and his wife. Not all relatives in business have trouble. Only 90 per cent.

Explosive Possibilities In Package From Asia

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The green sea bag was sent from a serviceman in Vietnam to a Baltimore address.

When investigator Edward D. Cussick of the U.S. Customs Office opened it, he found a parcel containing a Viet Cong hand grenade made of bamboo, a U.S. Army hand grenade and a triggering device.

The Baltimore police bomb squad defused the U.S. grenade Tuesday but summoned ordinance experts to handle the Viet Cong grenade, which had no percussion cap but contained wires inside the handle.

Good Play Isn't Piece Of Cake

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
You may consider it polite to refuse the first trick as declarer at notrump. The second trick is like the second offer of a slice of cake: you take it if you really want it. All of which may prove that playing good bridge is not really a piece of cake.

West led the king of spades, and South politely refused the trick. When West continued with the queen of spades South decided to scrap the etiquette book. He has nine tricks, and he would take them.

Declarer won in dummy with the ace of spades and took the king and queen of diamonds. When West discarded on the second diamond South suddenly stopped and wished he had listened to his mother more carefully.

Especially Polite
If South were especially polite (or a better bridge player) he would refuse the second spade trick. If West led a third spade, declarer would win in dummy with the ace, discarding the seven of diamonds from his hand.

Now South could take the king, queen and ace of diamonds, clearing the suit. With no blocking diamond in the South hand, declarer could continue to win tricks with dummy's low diamonds, assuring the game.

What happens if West switches to clubs after winning the first two spades? South wins the ace of clubs, cashes three top diamonds and then leads the ace of spades to discard his blocking diamond.

Answer: Bid two hearts. You expect partner to pass (since your bid shows weakness), and you expect to fare better at two hearts than partner would at 1-NT.

Go-Go Girls Go Victorian For Mayor

MANITOU SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Seventy-year-old Mayor Mabel Willie allowed Thursday that go-go girls in floor-length Victorian dresses are better than go-go girls in go-go girl costumes.

But as far as she's concerned, the best kind of go-go girls are the gone kind. "We're too small a city to have all that come in here," she said. Manitou Springs has about 3,600 residents.

Mayor Willie raided one tavern Sunday night and put a stop-stop to the go-go show. She claimed the three girls' costumes were too skimpy.

So, tavern owner Charles J. Murphy decked his dancers out in Gay 90's costumes Wednesday night but the girls raised their hemlines to show the regarties above their knees.

"Oh dear," said Mayor Willie, but the show went on.

Move City Cemeteries To Add Living Space, New Yorker Advises

NEW YORK (AP) — Cemeteries should be removed from New York City to make room for middle-income housing, says a United Housing Foundation official.

Harold Ostroff told a recent City Hall hearing that New Yorkers must decide whether "to relocate the living or the dead."

The city has 4,156 acres of cemeteries.

To Your Good Health

Some Deadly Poisons Should be Outlawed

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

I hope, if not with great optimism, that somebody at least is taking my advice to heart, and really doing something about making the house safe for children to live in — has cleared stuff out from under the sink... instituted a rule that all medicines be kept in a medicine chest all the time, with a latch so high or so difficult to open that little fingers can't cope with it.

But I know a lot of people won't.

Still, here are some extra precautions for those who will need.

Even if you have a "poison-safe" house, watch for the "leads."

People carry pills in their pockets and purses. One expert warned me, "Mothers' and grandmothers' purses become lethal traps."

"Grandma puts her purse on the floor. Children often go through purses — and we get these children, sick and sometimes in danger of dying from grandma's high blood pressure pills, diabetes pills, anti-depressant pills, thyroid pills. A purse is a trap."

Watch out for "diet pills." Dr. Regine Aronow, one of the most dedicated of poison fighters, tells me, "At least half a dozen times we have found a 'reducing' combination of medishould be combined: a mixture of amphetamines, thyroid and digoxin."

Even for adults a mixture of amphetamines ("pep pills"), thyroid extract, and digoxin which is a derivative of digitalis, of all things, is a powerful mix that makes no medical sense.

So when a baby gets it you can imagine what can happen.

Some experts are just about as emphatic about camphorated oil. One stormed, "It has no business being in a house."

At one poison center, a bit oftener than once a month, camphorated oil shows up in its role of poisoner. A surprisingly small dose can be lethal. It usually is given by mistake. Is it the "C" in the name that makes people carelessly reach for it instead of cathartics or other remedies starting with "C"? Camphorated oil works on the central nervous system, causing convulsions and other damage.

Aspirin? You may be sick of hearing me talk about it, but I am sickened by the way people keep on abusing it.

People think "baby type aspirin" is safe. A survey of over 1,000 aspirin poisonings show: 725 from "baby type"; 173 from adult type; 153 not determined.

Read that and remember it! Put special markings on bottles? Yes. It will focus your attention on the ever-present problem if nothing else, and the label's DO do some good. Of on a dare Teen-agers have done 1,500 poisonings the score was: this, too! It takes less for a From bottles with warning la-child.

bels 560; no warning label 810; unknown 154.

Do you keep things where they belong? If so, are you sure it's a safe place? There were 651 poisons stored "in the cus-tomary place," to 60 "not in customary place." Significant?

Poisons "in original contain-er": 1,222; not in original container; 243; unknown: 59. It's dangerous to leave poison sprays as often, proportionately, as lye or other things in pop or milk bottles — but knowing that isn't enough. Ten times as many poisons come right out of the dangerous original poison bottle.

Don't forget alcohol. Fool-listening? hardy adults have killed them-selves by drinking a whole bottle

Florence Henderson has sung and smiled her way to an immense popularity in the United States on stage and in television. People like her personality as much as they enjoy her voice which brought her fame in the musical comedy, light opera and concert fields. "An Evening With Florence Henderson" at 8:20 p.m. Sunday at Appleton High-West opens the new Variety Theater season sponsored by the Appleton Gallery of Arts.

Florence Henderson to Open Variety Theater

Popular Songstress of Stage, Television Sings Sunday Night at Appleton High-West

Appleton Gallery of Arts opens its 1967-1968 Variety Theater season Sunday with "An Evening With Florence Henderson." The popular singer, well-known to television audiences, will appear at 8:20 p.m. Sunday night at Appleton High School-West.

Tickets for both Miss Henderson's program and the complete series are on sale at Heid Music Store. The other performers for the season are comedian George Gobel, tenor John Gary, who only recently appeared at the first World Food Exposition in Madison, and actor Tom Ewell, who will star in the Broadway comedy "The Impossible Years."

Miss Henderson, considered one of the brightest and most talented figures in show business today, is recognized for her sparkling personality and bright intelligence as well as her fine vocal ability. Her voice has brought her acclaim in the concert field, musicals and light opera.

She began her professional career at the age of 17. It was while she was studying at the Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York City that she cut her classes to audition for a role in the Broadway musical "Wish You Were Here."

When she won a small part in the musical, her singing career was launched. Within a month she left the minor part to take the leading role of Laurie in a touring company production of "Oklahoma!" in which she starred for two years.

This long run was interrupted only by an appearance with the Civic Light Opera Company in "The Great Waltz" in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Despite the brevity of her stay in "Wish You Were Here," Miss Henderson made a vivid impression on Joshua Logan, the show's director, co-author and co-producer.

Plays "Fanny" No sooner had "Oklahoma!" completed its tour, than Logan offered her the title role in "Fanny," which he was directing. The show ran for over two years on Broadway and Florence was hailed for her moving portrayal.

In 1961, Miss Henderson was awarded the leading role of Maria in the national company of "The Sound of Music." She toured the country in this production for 15 months, playing to capacity business wherever the show went.

Among the other productions in which Miss Henderson has starred are "The King and I," which inaugurated the Los Angeles Music Center, and "South Pacific," which sold out its entire run.

Recital on Debussy and Schumann

Kay Mueller Peterson To Present Program At Lawrence Sunday

Songs by Claude Debussy and Robert Schumann form the program of mezzo-soprano Kay Mueller Peterson, whose recital at 8 p.m. Sunday opens the Lawrence University concert season.

Featured work will be the Schumann "Liederkreis" (Song cycle), Opus 24, set to poems of Heine. Written in 1840, the year of the composer's marriage, the nine-song cycle is among more than 250 odd songs in the Schumann catalogue. Among its colorful titles are "I walked under the trees," "Dear love, place your hand on my heart," and "With myrtle and roses, lovely and sweet."

Other Schumann songs on Mrs. Peterson's program are set to texts by Heine, Kerner and an anonymous author.

Three Debussy cycles are programmed, along with a recitative and aria from "L'Enfant Prodigue," composed in 1884. Among the group are songs based on poems of Charles d'Orleans, "Rondeles de Charles d'Orleans," 1904; Paul Verlaine ("Ariettes Oubliees" 1888); and Pierre Louys ("Chansons de Bilitis," 1897).

Mrs. Peterson's program is being presented by the Lawrence chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda, honorary music society. Tickets for the former Lawrence scholar's recital are available from members of the society, and at the university box office in the Music-Drama Center. Proceeds go to a scholarship fund.

From Ki Ni Island

We do have to go through a few rainy and miserable days to arrive at beautiful Indian Summer, and now to brighten your Sundays, our beautiful Bellevue Dining Room will be open every Sunday from 12 o'clock noon until 10 o'clock. You won't care about the weather outside, for no matter, the view is always interesting, and the Bellevue so warm and inviting. We will have a fine menu for your pleasure, and every Sunday will serve American Fried Chicken, the favorite of so many.

The Fourcrinier Coffee Shop will be open also for lighter meals and snacks, and if you are in sports clothes, no matter — you are welcome.

On Sunday, October 8th, the mavelous Lee Schmidt Trio will entertain in the Lost Dauphin Cocktail Lounge and the Dining Rooms. This is perfect entertainment for families — or the gay ones. We think you will enjoy it.

Your favorite fish fry, with corn fritters — Every Friday in the Caboose, beginning at 5:00 p.m., and entertainment Tuesday through Saturday.

How fortunate we were last week, between showers, to have many outdoor functions. Cocktail parties, luau, and a Gay 90's cookout. Farmers Insurance group was in, and colorful they were in costumes on two occasions.

Their second convention at The Pioneer, and we are looking forward to their coming back next year.

Kiehaefer-Mercury entertained their 1968 Dealers Congress here last weekend, as they did the press two weeks ago. A highlight for both groups was a tour of their marvelous plant in Fond du Lac. We attended their open house on Sunday, September 17th. It was a wonderful experience to see this immaculate, unique plant. So streamlined, and a true symbol of our jet age and its perfectionism. Fond du Lac should be so proud to be the center of this world-wide corporation, and Oshkosh also, to be a part of it.

The National Conference board chose the Pioneer for a special conference this week, and the Adoption and Guidance clinic of the State Welfare Department is here, plus the Air-Conditioning and Ventilating Convention of the Midwest. A great deal of planning by Oshkosh Serra has been done to host their meeting this week-end.

Thursday style shows continue, Friday Fish Fries, entertainment from Tues., through Saturday, and you will want to remember our new Sunday hours.

Cost of Moving Port Landing System Probed

OSHKOSH — Clarification of Winnebago County would have to pay all of the cost to accommodate the additional length. In other action, the committee voted to ask for $50,000 for architectural fees for the proposed new terminal building at the airport.

The consulting firm of How-Engeldinger has asked the Board, Needles, Tammen and FAA what their schedule is for Bergendoff is now in the process of completing preliminary plans west runway to the new north-south runway; what the financial impact on Winnebago County would be if the new runway is extended after the ILS is moved, and, if any plans could be made in anticipation of the runway extension after the ILS is moved.

Questions Prompted The questions were prompted by Brown County's experience which cost more than $300,000 to move equipment when the county extended a runway which was ILS equipped.

The new runway will be 6,700 feet long but airport manager, S. J. Wittman, has recommended adding another 800 feet as soon as possible as an added safety margin for jets. The FAA has indicated that after the ILS is moved to the new runway

May Seek Pay Hike for Board in New Budget

Expected to be Recommended at October Session

OSHKOSH — An increase in the per diem paid to county board supervisors for attending board and committee meetings probably will be recommended during the October budget session of the county board.

However, the amount of the increase and the format to be used have not yet been decided. A companion increase in salary for the board chairman also will be asked with the figure of $1,000 being proposed at the present time although that may still be changed. The board chairman now receives $600 in addition to his per diem.

County board members now receive $14 for a full-day session of the board and $7 for a half-day session. They also receive $7 for a committee meeting. In addition they receive travel pay for board and committee meetings.

Any changes in the per diem or salary for the board chairman would not take effect until after the April election when all supervisor posts will be on the ballot. State law prohibits electing officials from raising their salaries during a term of office.

Two major salary increases are being proposed for county officials. An increase from $11,000 to $15,000 is being requested for the district attorney and an increase from $12,000 to $16,500 for the county corporation counsel.

'Sparkle' the Puppy Brings Smiles to the faces of Mark Poellinger, Neenah, and his mother, Mrs. Al Poellinger, as the former ward of the Neenah-Menasha Animal Welfare League helps her new master and his family celebrate National Dog Week—after helping Mark celebrate his 11th birthday by adopting the boy as her master. (Post-Crescent Photo)

'Sparkle' Celebrates Dog Week by Finding New Home

NEENAH-MENASHA — It should happen to every dog. And, thanks to the Neenah-Menasha Animal Welfare League, it often does.

'Sparkle' was a small fluffball of a puppy who recently arrived at the league's Town of Neenah shelter after her original owners had been unable to take care of her because of illness in the family.

She, like 1,300 other animals during the past year, found refuge, food and care awaiting her.

Gib Alfering, manager of the shelter, supervised her care as he has overseen the handling of the numerous dogs and cats that have come to the shelter since he became manager.

There also have been rabbits, pet birds, Easter chicks — this year, even a pig — that have experienced the same hospitality the shelter gave Sparkle.

National Dog Week and the happy ending to Sparkle's story just happened to come about the same time.

Mark Poellinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Poellinger, 908 Diare St., Neenah, had been wishing for a puppy for his 11th birthday.

A photographer came and took Sparkle's picture, and it appeared in the Twin City News-Record section of The Post-Crescent. The Poellingers rushed to the shelter and Sparkle had a new home while Mark had the birthday present he had been promised.

But, that wasn't the end of the story. The shelter received some 90 telephone calls from other people who wanted to adopt Sparkle after seeing her picture. Many of them came to the shelter and other dogs found new homes — in time to celebrate National Dog Week this week.

Winnebago County Unveils Record $8.1 Million Budget

OSHKOSH — A record budget of $8,112,300 has been proposed for Winnebago County for 1968. This is $1.18 million more than was budgeted to be spent for this year.

If no changes are made in the proposed budget and no surplus funds applied against the spending, county taxpayers would have to pay a levy of $2,868,719, or, $411,766 more than they paid to operate the county this year.

However, for 1967 the county board had applied $180,000 in surplus funds (money accumulated either from higher revenues than anticipated or from departments spending less than they budgeted) against the levy, and County Auditor M. H. Morrisette indicated Friday he felt the county could safely take $200,000 from this year's surplus to cut the levy.

Budget requests are expected to increase, however. Within hours Friday after the finance committee had compiled the proposed budget the aviation committee discovered it had failed to request funds for architectural fees for the proposed new airport terminal building and will ask that $50,000 be inserted in the budget.

Supv. Floyd Shurbert, chairman of the Public Building Committee, also said Friday night his committee had failed to request $65,000 to match a similar amount from last year to install air conditioning in the courthouse. He said this would be added to the budget.

A third major item that was expected also does not appear in the proposed budget. On Sept. 6 the special Little Lake Butte des Morts Bridge Committee voted to request $100,000 to start right-of-way acquisition for approaches to the proposed bridge across Little Lake Butte des Morts but the amount does not appear in the budget.

The three items would add a total of $215,000 to the already bulging total.

Offsetting some of the record expenditures are anticipated record revenues totaling $5,243,581, an increase of $932,771 over the 1967 budget estimate.

With few exceptions, estimated spending of every county department is above that budgeted for this year with the major increases coming in the Department of Social Services and Pleasant Acres Home. At the same time, the major estimated revenue increases are in the same two departments.

Some of the major department operating budget totals include Department of Social Services, $2,268,166 (up $461,933); Pleasant Acres, $754,017 (up $240,467); County Mental Hospital, $1,309,349 (up $23,565); Highway, $765,090 (up $44,900); and Sheriff and traffic police, $343,284 (up $63,644).

Two other budget increases are indebtedness payments, $406,000 (up $34,475) and the county's share of employee benefits, $370,755 (up $72,940).

On the revenue side, major increases include state aid for the county mental hospital, $952,212 (up $133,147); Pleasant Acres, $788,400 (up $414,000); Department of Social Services, $1,455,418 (up $284,128); and county share of various state taxes, $995,000 (up $45,000).

Morrisette told the Finance Committee the county's finances were in "excellent condition" and they could safely take $200,000 from surplus funds. However, committee members decided not to make any recommendation but to let the entire county board decide on the amount to be used.

Formal budget debate before the entire county board will start Oct. 24.

For Winnebago Capital Outlay Totals $373,000

OSHKOSH — Capital outlay items presently account for $373,761 of the record $8.1 million proposed 1968 Winnebago County Budget compiled by the finance committee Friday.

This outlay total, in all probability, will be swelled by another $215,000 which was not included in the budget requests presented to the Finance Committee.

The two biggest outlay items formally in the budget are $100,000 for county park development and $117,462 for the county airport.

The Park and Recreation Committee request for $100,000 would be combined with another $100,000 accumulated over the last two years in earmarked funds, to start long-range development of a proposed $1 million park on the old county farm site north of Oshkosh.

Aviation Committee requests include $115,000 to be added to the county's share of the expense of moving the control tower at the airport. Of the $115,000, $67,000 would be in new funds with about $38,000 to be used from excess funds of a previous airport project.

Another $2,250 is being asked for construction of cul-de-sacs at the ends of the roads which were cut off by construction of the new north-south runway at the airport.

Almost $13,000 is being asked for new equipment in courthouse offices, $12,000 for county police squad car replacement, $6,660 for civil defense equipment, $5,000 for equipment at three county parks, and $38,220 for equipment at the county mental hospital.

Other items include $25,000 for a new roof and metal siding for the grandstand at the county fairgrounds and $43,600 for equipment and furnishings in the new Department of Social Services building.

Major items still to be added to the outlay total are $100,000 for right-of-way acquisition for the proposed Little Lake Butte des Morts bridge, $65,000 to complete the funding for courthouse air conditioning and $50,000 for architectural fees for the proposed new airport terminal building.

Night Public Hearing for 1968 Budget

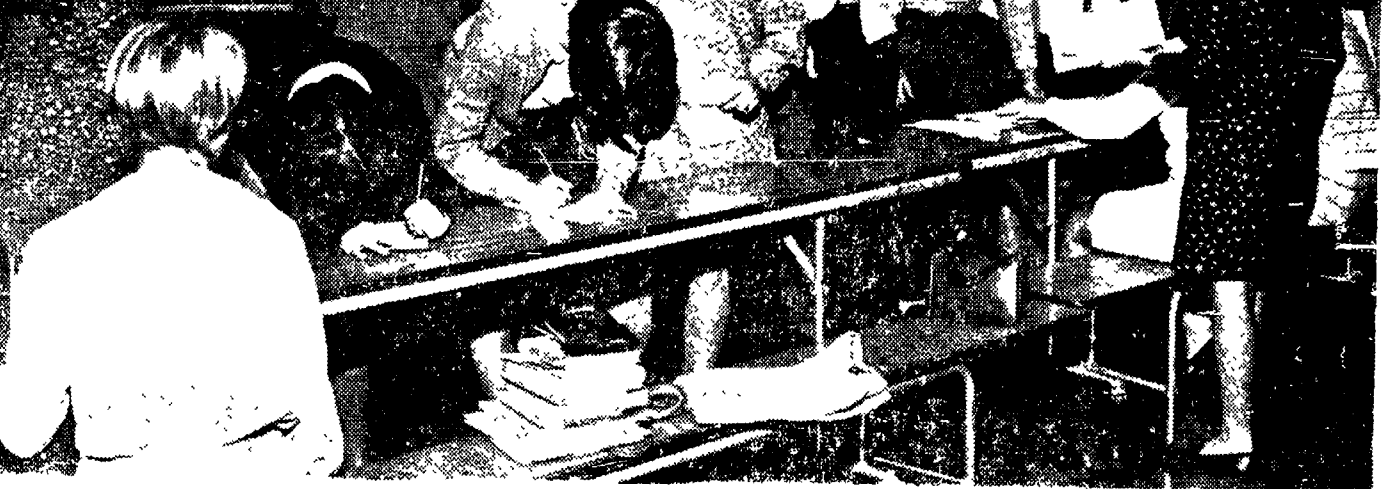

OSHKOSH — For the first time in county history the public hearing on the county budget will be held at night.

The hearing on the record proposed 1968 budget of $8.1 million has been set for 7 p.m. Oct. 25. The annual budget session of the county board starts the day before.

An evening public hearing is expected to give more citizens an opportunity to make their views on the budget known to the county board.

The board had intended to conduct last year's hearing at night but discovered too late they had inserted the usual afternoon hours in the legal notice.

Kimberly Schools Enrollment Shows 61 Increase Over '66

KIMBERLY — School enrollment in the Kimberly district for 1967-68 is 3,846, an increase of 61 over last year.

Ray Hamann, superintendent of schools, said official enrollments are not counted until several weeks after school starts to insure inclusion of late registrants or transfers. Public school enrollment, including kindergarten through 12th grade, was 2,640, an increase of 162.

Grade school enrollment increased from 1,474 to 1,538; junior high from 424 to 472 and high school from 580 to 630. The public school figure does not include shared-time seventh and eighth grade pupils who decreased from 283 to 257.

Holy Name Catholic School, grades three through eight, has an enrollment of 783, a decrease of 84 from the 1966-67 total. Third grade dropped 20; fourth grade, 18; fifth grade 25, and seventh grade 28. There were eight more eighth graders. Sixth grade enrollment remained at 134.

Kaukauna Man Denies Making Annoying Calls

Patrick Kerrigan, 36, route 2, Kaukauna, pleaded innocent Friday to a charge of making annoying telephone calls to the Outagamie County Sheriff's Department last Monday.

County Judge Raymond P. Dohr ordered a bail bond study by the State Department of Health and Social Services after Kerrigan's attorney asked for a reduction in the $1,500 bond set by Judge Gustave J. Keller. The case was assigned to Dohr after Keller disqualified himself.

Judge Dohr said he would set a trial date after the bond study is made. Kerrigan was returned to jail in lieu of bond. He also is charged under a state repeater statute.

Oshkosh Offers Joint City-Airport Fire Plan

OSHKOSH — The aviation committee of the Winnebago County Board took under consideration Friday evening a multi-purpose proposal by the City of Oshkosh to provide airline crash protection in exchange for a piece of airport land upon which the city would construct a fire station.

Oshkosh City Manager Angus Crawford told the committee that if the airport gave the city the land and revamped a 25-year old city 4-wheel drive fire truck into a crash vehicle, the new fire station would house and service the truck, and provide 24 hour manpower service.

Crawford said the city needs a new fire station and he added that it would also like to build a training facility in the same area.

For Protection The land in question is near 20th St., and Knapp, which the airport presently does not own, but Gerald Engeldinger, county corporation counsel, said the

Rights Council To Hear Salas Discussion

Discussion on State's Migrants Will be Topic

Jesus Salas, head of the united migrant workers of Wisconsin, will be the guest speaker at the Fox Valley Human Rights Council meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the Reddy Room of the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co.

"A Report on Wisconsin Migrants" will be the title of his speech.

The migrant group which Salas leads won its first bargaining victory with Libby-McNeill on Aug. 31. This was the first strong victory for the migrants who began to organize a little more than a year ago.

Salas first won national fame with his dramatic 74-mile march last summer from Wautoma to Madison to ask for better working and living conditions for the migrants.

Homer and Jethro Show

Typical Humor Delights Small Audience

BY PAT DUFFEY Post-Crescent Staff Writer

After 35 years together as top flight entertainers, Homer and Jethro's performance in Appleton must have brought back memories of one-night stands from years back in desolate places.

Unfortunately, Appleton might have been just that for the size of welcome extended to the clowns of the Country and Western music Friday night at the Lawrence Chapel. Even the sound system rebelled.

Enthusiasm Shown

Part of a potential audience was dancing on the new College Avenue a couple blocks away during an intermittent drizzle. About 100 attended the first performance but 400 made it for the second.

Fortunately what the entertainers lacked in audience numbers they were repaid by appreciation and enthusiasm.

They opened with, "It's nice to see so many missing their dinner. The last time we were here in 1928 (This was their first appearance in Appleton) we were told it would be a cold day before they had us back."

They took lively jabs at everything. Commenting on the refurbished chapel, Jethro opined, "Nice building you got here if you ever get it finished." Despite the heavy comedy interruptions during "serious" guitar solos by Homer, Jethro flashed more than a passing knowledge of music with his guitar.

The pair will appear on the Dean Martin Show via video tape Nov. 2. They taped their segment a short time ago. Jethro observed, "He (Dean Martin) spills more than everybody else drinks."

They turned in their finest moment while demolishing "Winchester Cathedral." It went something like this:

"Winchester Cathedral. You're driving me mad. 'I don't know who sings it, but it's driving me mad."

"I'll be so glad when that song disappears."

"It set music back 50 years."

"Winchester Cathedral, you're doing me dirt."

Sound Problem

"They finally wrote one, that we couldn't hurt."

In the final verse they added,

"We didn't kill you but we certainly tried."

Sherry Lee and the Val-Rays even had a tough time as the warmer uppers for the stars. Their sound problems at first were the opposite of those to follow — too loud. As often happens in musical companies of recent vintage the instruments drowned out the singers.

She is the former Sherry McIntyre of Appleton, now Mrs. William Carter. Her husband heads the troupe which performed well under difficult circumstances.

Perhaps both troupes were playing against a stacked deck and the College Avenue merchants were the winners of the crowds returning after a summer hiatus while the avenue was being beautified.

'Playmate' Passes Up Lunch With Officials

In a last minute change of plans, Miss Jo Collins, Playmate Magazine's 1965 "Playmate of the Year" made an appearance at a Lawrence University fraternity house instead of lunching with Appleton city officials this noon.

The change in plans followed an incident Friday night during the formal dedication of the new College Avenue lighting system, when Miss Collins claimed she was "snubbed" by Mayor George Buckley during the ceremony and the picture-taking session that followed.

Mayor Buckley has denied that he snubbed Miss Collins, labeling the charges "false" and saying he was not "aware she was there." He said officials had not informed him that she was to take part in the ceremonies.

For a time it looked as though Miss Collins would withdraw from Saturday's parade because of the incident, but tempers were cooled late Friday night and Miss Collins rode in the parade.

The Lawrence fraternity appearance lasted for about one-half hour. Both professors and students attended.

The topics were selected as the Lutheran Church marks its 450th anniversary.

Student Counselors Day Monday, Not Saturday

The Second Annual Guidance Counselor's Day, for area high school guidance counselors, will be Monday instead of Saturday as announced in Friday's edition of The Post-Crescent.

The program, sponsored jointly by the Appleton and Twin Cities personnel associations in cooperation with the Wisconsin State Employment Service, will consist of a full-day of tours of Fox Valley area firms and a dinner at the Appleton Elks Club.

Resolution Adopted

Chilton C of C Opposes Counties Merger Plan

CHILTON — The board of directors of the Chilton Chamber of Commerce unanimously passed a resolution Thursday opposing the consolidation of Calumet, Winnebago and Outagamie counties into one county and condemning the procedure used in attempting to establish such legislation.

The resolution states that "no preliminary study or investigation of this undertaking was made by the Legislature to determine its need and effect, and the passage of such a proposal would have profound effect on every function of long-established county government in each county involved. Such a merger would react economically and emotionally on the lives of tens of thousands of Wisconsin citizens."

Impetuous Action

It went on to say that "the thousands of citizens affected by this impetuous action have no right of self-determination, which is repugnant to democratic procedure. It is felt that the passage of such legislation would be to the great detriment of the people of the City of Chilton and Calumet County."

"The Chamber of Commerce will go on record firmly opposing the undemocratic procedure employed to destroy the several counties and establish an enormous county. The group will also join in a concerted action to defeat such legislation."

To Cold in Jail

Prisoners Get Weekend Off

Five prisoners got unexpected "weekend passes" from the Outagamie County Jail Friday afternoon — thanks to the judge who sent them there.

Judge Gustave J. Keller, noting that the entire courthouse was cold because the furnace was not working, said it was "inhuman" to keep prisoners in the frigid cells. Undersheriff Calvin L. Spice said that if the cells remain cold, he may have to transfer the remaining 27 prisoners to a jail in another county.

When the heat, which has been off all week, was still not on by 3 p.m. Friday, an angry Judge Keller called court into session "for the record" and sent five of the Huber Law (work release) prisoners home until 6 a.m. Monday.

"The court is well aware of conditions being experienced in the courthouse insofar as the lack of heat is concerned ..." the judge remarked.

Temperature Readings

He noted jail temperature readings which he had asked be taken. They were: East four cells, 67 degrees; Huber Law section, 67; west four cells, 63; girls' juvenile section, 65; big lockup area, 69; and boys' juvenile section, 66 degrees.

Judge Keller, who let his office girls leave work early, said it was 60 degrees in his third floor court chambers. He said that he had been considering cancelling his Friday morning court calendar because the courtroom was too cold.

"The court feels it is not in the interest of the county or the health of the prisoners that they remain confined," under the adverse conditions, Judge Keller said.

Commenting that he has no control over prisoners serving regular sentences, Judge Keller noted that he has "some direction" over Huber Law prisoners. He said that before making his decision, he discussed the matter with Spice and Harold Greinert, head jailer, and had been up to the jail several times himself.

Can Release 5

Although there were eight Huber Law prisoners, he said he would not release three of them because they were sentenced on charges involving excessive drinking.

He granted "out probation" until Monday to the other five, so they could "find warmer places." Conditions of the weekend passes are that the prisoners have a place to stay, report to work if they have weekend jobs, and "not indulge in any intoxicants."

Judge Keller said he heard there would be heat in the jail by Monday. "If there is not, we'll meet the situation as it occurs," he remarked.

Sylvester Esler, county board chairman, told a reporter Friday that there was no heat in the courthouse this week because of a delay in the shipping of parts needed for converting the courthouse heating system from coal to natural gas.

The $6,000 conversion job is expected to be completed next week. A contractor was working on the heating plant Friday.

Courthouse temperatures were as low as 58 degrees in some offices when employees came to work Friday morning. Portable heaters were used in many offices.

Slingshot User Won't Be Driving

Arrested after a patrolman found a slingshot and a pile of stones inside a car, Larry E. Pagel, 17, 1420 N. Owaissa St., was ordered to pay $4 court costs and his driver's license was suspended for 60 days Friday.

The youth pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 of shooting stones with a slingshot in the city the afternoon of Sept. 22.

Police were called to the courthouse area after people complained someone in a car was shooting stones at cars and houses.

The court was informed Friday that Pagel also was "delivered" at home as a result of the incident.

Conduct Code Delayed By Student Objections

State Universities System-Wide Plan To be Studied More by Affected Personnel

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Objections from students over a planned system-wide code of conduct for the nine Wisconsin state universities have delayed its pronouncement. The Board of Regents of State Universities has been told.

Planned for presentation at Friday's meeting of the board, the code will be studied more deeply by affected student government leaders and faculty deans, the system's presidents and a special board committee before being offered to the full body, Regent W. Roy Kopp, Platteville, told the group.

"The problem is such that it can't be handled in two or three meetings a month or so apart," he told the board when reporting the actions of the subcommittee heads.

Need More Study

"It seems necessary to have a study in some depth," he said of the project that started this summer.

Students have objected to board pronouncement of a code of conduct affecting their lives on the separate campuses, he said. Some have suggested that the board, empowered by law to take the action, has no right to infringe on students in such a manner.

Others have said that a uniform code should not be enforced, but that each campus should be allowed to work out its own system and present it to the board for approval.

"If we can get some cooperation on the campuses from the students, it will be more effective," Kopp said.

2 Injured In Accidents

Cyclist Bruised After Crash With Automobile

Two persons, including a young motorbike rider, suffered minor injuries in separate accidents on Appleton streets Friday.

William Hoff, 16, 1219 S. Oneida St., suffered bumps and bruises, but was not hospitalized, after his motorbike and a car driven by Eileen J. Wolosek, 22, route 1, Kaukauna, collided Friday morning at E. Calumet and S. Jefferson streets.

Police said the Wolosek car was westbound on Calumet and was turning left onto Jefferson and the motorbike was eastbound on Calumet. Police said the motorbike left 53 feet of skid marks. The motorbike was extensively damaged.

Joyce M. Slowatyniec, 23, 206 S. Madison St., Menasha, suffered minor injuries when her car was struck at S. State and W. Fifth Streets about 11:40 p.m.

Police said the Slowatyniec auto was southbound on State when it was struck by a westbound auto driven by Timothy J. Sewall, 410 W. North Water St., Neenah.

Hassock Charred in Blaze at Kaukauna

KAUKAUNA — Firemen used 20 gallons of water to extinguish a fire smoldering in a hassock at the home of Mrs. Elsie Allen, 208 E. Second St., about 11:15 a.m. Friday.

Firemen said a cigarette fell from the ashtray, igniting the hassock.

At 3:27 p.m. firemen were called to the Kenneth Roberts residence, 1405 Crocks Ave., when lint in a dryer ignited, causing smoke in the house.

Enrollment at the University of Wisconsin Fox Valley Center increased this fall to 667 students. 20 more than a year ago, Al Bussell, assistant to the dean, reports.

Figures released from Madison published Friday in the Post-Crescent indicated the enrollment was only 350 this year.

CLINTONVILLE — New London quarterback Greg Wing dashed 30 yards for a first quarter touchdown and the Bulldog defense stopped Clintonville twice inside the 10-yard line to spark a 6-0 victory over the Trukcers in a Mid-Eastern Conference clash here Friday night.

The game left both teams with 1-3 overall records and 1-2 league marks.

Brillion Posts 33-6 Victory Over Shiocton

Lions Take 26-6 Halftime Lead, Remain Unbeaten

BRILLION — Brillion's undefeated Lions continued after Little Nine Conference Friday night as they raced to a 33-6 victory over Shiocton. The win kept Brillion, now 5-0, alone in first place in the Little Nine where most of the action is scheduled for today.

The first time the Lyons had the ball, they put together a 64-yard march that was capped off by halfback Tom Garrow's 4 yard run. Russ Hansen's kick for the point made it 7-0.

Minutes later, Mark Evel recovered a Shiocton fumble on the Brillion 33 and the Lions needed only five plays to cover the 67 yards to paydirt. Dick Klein went in from five yards out.

Another fumble recovery, this one by Jim Michaels, set up Brillion's first second-period touchdowns. The Lions drove 41 yards and sent Klein over on a 1-yard plunge. Hansen added his second conversion and the score jumped to 20-0.

After the kickoff, the Chiefs put together a drive of their own as they went 65 yards to score with quarterback Gary Johnson hitting end Dan Gast with a 7-yard pass.

On the last play of the first half, Captain Stan Piepenburg made one of his three interceptions for Brillion and raced 30 yards to score to give the Lions a 26-6 halftime cushion.

Piepenburg and Dennis Miller combined to set up the Lion's third period touchdown. Piepenburg intercepted another Shiocton aerial, this one on the Brillion 41. Two plays later, Miller raced 52 yards from scrimmage to the Chiefs' 1-yard line, from where Garrow lugged the pigskin in for his second touchdown of the night. Hansen's kick made it 33-7 and ended the scoring.

Statistics indicate a much closer game than does the final score. Brillion out-first-downed the Chiefs, 10 to 9, and gained 244 total yards to 229.

Brillion threw only two passes and completed one of them. Shiocton threw 17 times, with five completions for 89 yards. Four Shiocton passes were intercepted by the alert Brillion defense.

Eau Claire Memorial Upsets Wausau, 13-7; Fond du Lac Loses

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — Three of the five rated big schools that saw action Friday night were defeated as upsets filled the air in Wisconsin's young 1967 high school football season.

The featured game of the night saw Eau Claire Memorial beat Wausau 13-7 in a battle of two highly ranked and previously undefeated teams.

Memorial, now 4-0, was ninth in this week's Associated Press poll for big schools and Wausau, now 4-1, was second. The victory left Memorial in possession of the Big Rivers Conference lead.

Wausau drove for a touchdown the first time it had the ball as Rick Cox capped a 64-yard drive with a two-yard scoring run and Gary Gray converted the extra point.

Hill connects Memorial evened the score in the first period as Pete Hill connected on an eight yard pass to Larry Bugher for a touchdown and then kicked the extra point.

In the third period, Hill scored the go-ahead touchdown on a two-yard run after Memorial marched 77 yards. The Eau Claire defenders, meanwhile, had stopped Wausau cold—allowing just two more first downs in the game.

Another upset saw Whitefish Bay, ranked third in the Big Ten, drop a narrow 8-6 decision to South Milwaukee.

Ken Rome charged in for the winning touchdown from 22 yards out with just over two minutes left to play. The win left South Milwaukee with a 3-0 mark, while Whitefish Bay's record dropped to 2-1.

Dick Rasmussen was the star in the evening's third major upset as he led Sheboygan North to a 3-0 triumph over Fond du Lac, which was rated 10th among the big schools.

Rasmussen threw a 75-yard option pass to Mark Hildebrand in the third quarter to bring North to within field goal range. Then he applied his toe to the ball from 22-yards out and brought home the winning points. Both teams are now 3-1.

In another game involving a ranked team from the Big Ten, Green Bay West, No. 8, boosted its season record to 3-0 with a 18-13 victory over Oshkosh.

Ranked schools in the Little Ten scored impressive victories over their foes.

Top-rated Stratford upped its season mark to 5-0 with a 60-0 romp over Marathon, Brillion beat Shiocton and Kohler downed Cedar Grove by identical 33-6 scores. Brillion, third among the small schools, is now 4-0 for the season and Kohler, ranked fifth, is 5-0.

Among individual standouts was New Holstein's Bob Ausloos, who scored three touchdowns for the second week in a row as he led his team to a 20-0 triumph over Sheboygan Falls.

He scored on runs of eight and 55 yards and caught a 70-yard touchdown pass on the first play

Waupaca Tips Marion, 20-6

Solberg Scores All 3 Touchdowns In CWC Victory

MARION — Led by Bob Solberg, the Waupaca High School Comets tipped the Marion Mustangs here, 20-6, to give Waupaca its second win and Marion its third loss in Central Wisconsin Conference action.

After a scoreless first quarter, a pass from John Holly to Solberg gave the Comets their first six points. With 3 minutes, 30 seconds left in the half, Marion's Steve Kristoff went over from the one after a 60-yard drive.

In the third quarter, after a fumble recovery on Waupaca's 22, a Comet drive was capped by Solberg's 5-yard rush, bringing the score to 12-6. Solberg then made the final touchdown of the game by running 45 yards after a pass interception.

from scrimmage.

The Associated Press Player of the Week, Steve Duval of Wisconsin Rapids, scored two touchdowns, as his school beat Rhinelander 20-7. Duval scored on a 95-yard pass interception with five seconds remaining in the game and caught a 4-yard aerial for the other score.

Duval also returned two kick offs for a total of 36 yards, two punts for 12 yards, and gained 130-yards in 19 tries from scrimmage.

Manawa Raps Amherst, 53-6

Tom Griffin Leads Non-Conference With 4 TDS

AMHERST — Fullback Tom Griffin, who has averaged over 100 yards per game this year, rambed for four touchdowns Friday night in leading Manawa to a 53-6 rout over winless Amherst.

Mickey Olson opened to a 20-point first period for the Falcons with an 8-yard blast to paydirt. Olson also ran for the extra point.

Griffin scored the first of his touchdowns mid-way through the period with a 24-yard sprint. Minutes later, Jerry Griffin took a 20 yard pass from Doug Langman for the third Manawa tally and Tom Griffin added the point to make it 20-0.

The second period found Tom Griffin going 6 yards and Olson going 22 for Manawa touchdowns. Griffin ran for the PAT after both scores.

Amherst drew blood in the second quarter also when quarter-back Tony Piotrowski rambed 52 yards.

Griffin and Bob Passehl added third period tallies for the Falcons. Griffin running eight yards for his third touchdown and Passchl scampering 56 yards for his. Olson added the PAT after Passchl's effort.

Speculation Centers Over Billy Hitchcock's Successor

ATLANTA, Ga — Ousted Atlanta Braves Manager Billy Hitchcock went home "to rest and relax" today as speculation mounted about his successor, centering mainly around minor league manager Luman Harris.

Hitchcock was fired Friday without being told beforehand. Braves General Manager Paul Richards said "three or four" men are candidates to replace him. Harris was considered the leading prospect.

Harris guided the Braves' Richmond farm team to the In-year. He has played, coached or managed under Richards at Atlanta, Buffalo, Chicago, Baltimore and Houston.

However, the name of another highly regarded minor league manager, Ray Hartfield, cropped up. Hartfield managed Spokane, the Los Angeles Dodgers' triple-A farm team in the Pacific Coast League, this year.

However, Richards said no commitments had been made.

AP's Hand Foresees Wins for Bays, Dallas

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP) — Dallas, Baltimore, Kansas City and San Diego should be the only winning pro football clubs after Sunday's 12-game schedule in the National Football League and American Football League.

According to the view from here the Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco 49ers, and Oakland Raiders will suffer their first defeats this weekend.

A 9-3 week brought the season record to 17-5-1 (12-3-1 in the NFL and 5-2 in the AFL). Let's take another flyer. All games are Sunday.

NFL

Green Bay 30, Atlanta 0—Time for Packers to get up a head of steam against Falcons' porous defense. After tie and squeaker with Bears, Pack should not need Don Chandler to win this one. Hard to believe Green Bay has thrown the passer only once all year. Maybe they'll take it out on Randy Johnson. Bart Starr should get well.

Minnesota 14, Chicago 10—An upset. This is a toughie. Two nothing clubs. Gale Sayers usually has big day against Vikings, but Bear offense pitiful so far and Minnesota not much better. Take the Vikings on chance Joe Kapp may get attack rolling.

Cleveland 21, New Orleans 10—Two more non-winners. Despite Frank Ryan's bad ankles. Browns should win on running of Leroy Kelly. Could be close.

Detroit 27, St. Louis 22—Lions' passing game ordinary, but Mel Farr makes them tops in running. Lions won preseason game 21-7 Sept. 8. Unless Jim Bakken kicks seven more field goals, Lions should have edge.

Dallas 28, Los Angeles 20—This is the big one and the pick here is Dallas in upset. Cowboys looked strong with Don Meredith doing fine job against Giants. Rams' defense has allowed only one touchdown, a kickoff return, but their offense will have trouble with Cowboys' front four. Rams won preseason tilt 20-6, Aug. 12.

Washington 35, New York 28—Redskins won preseason game 31-13 at Raleigh, N.C. Aug. 19. Charley Taylor, John Love and Bobby Mitchell all can't be double covered. Sonny Jurgensen will find the holes in Giant defense. Fran Tarkenton should have a big day, too, in a free-scoring contest, but Skins' line will make him scramble.

Philadelphia 24, Pittsburgh 13—A week ago the pick would have been the Steelers but loss of Bill Nelsen forces Bill Austin to fall back on untried Kent Nix and Passchl scampering 56 yards for his. Olson added the PAT after Passchl's effort.

Eagles have beaten their five of the last six but that Steeler pass defense will make Norm Sneed wary.

Baltimore 28, San Francisco 20—Two more unbeaten teams. Colts have jinx on 49ers, winning nine straight since 1962. Big game for both clubs in Coastal Division. Balanced 49er attack will pressure Colts' secondary, but John Unitas has their number.

AFL

Kansas City 21, Oakland 17—Another battle of all winners. Chiefs won preseason game 48-0 but Raiders have come on strong, allowing only seven points in two games. Oakland's pass rush will keep Len Dawson hopping but Mike Garrett and Curt McClinton give Kansas City the edge. One of toughest games on the program.

Houston 24, Denver 14—Joe Namath picked Denver apart last week. Houston's passing poor so far but Broncos have given up 20 touchdowns in four games. A big day for Hoyle Granger.

San Diego 14, Buffalo 10—How can you figure the Bills? Sturdy defense has given up 60 points in three games and attack has produced only 23. Lance Alworth makes Chargers choice in tight one.

New York 28, Miami 7—Namath is on the beam but Matt Snell still is out.

Pirates past Houston while Bob Robertson, another rookie, contributed his second homer to the Pittsburgh attack. Third inning singles by Mawry Wills, Manny Mota, Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell keyed a decisive three-run flurry.

Ferguson Jenkins breezed to his 20th victory, scattering six hits as the Cubs downed Cincinnati with the help of two solo homers by Billy Williams. Bill Graham checked Los Angeles on six hits for his first major league victory and singled a run home for the Mets, who snapped a five-game losing streak.

State's Congressmen Split on 'Rat' Vote

BY FRANCES MCKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Wisconsin's delegation was evenly split in its vote on the controversial "rat amendment" to the omnibus health bill approved Wednesday despite its active support by three members of the delegation.

The amendment, which Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R. Marshfield, claimed was not a "rat amendment" at all, provided for the distribution of $40 million over two years, to state health agencies for use in their most urgent health projects. It was approved 227 to 173.

Voting for the amendment were Reps. Robert W. Kastenmeier, Watertown; Clement J. Zablocki, and Henry S. Reuss both of Milwaukee; all Democrats and Reps. William A. Steiger Oshkosh and Melvin R. Laird both Republicans.

Delegation Split

Voting against the amendment were Reps. Henry C. Schadeberg Burlington; Vernon W. Thomson, Richland Center, John W. Byrnes, Green Bay; Glenn R. Davis, New Berlin; and Albin E. O'Konski, Mercer, all Republicans.

Although both Laird and Reuss, one of the authors if the amendment, urged its passage, their individual interpretation of the measure was at some variance.

Explaining his amendment, Reuss said that it did not "set up a categorical, segmented, sealed-off program for rats. It simply adds to the overall health services authorization of $40 million during two years. The sums are available for rat control and extermination, which have been abundantly demonstrated to be necessary to fund the program. If these funds are not spent for rats, they can either lapse or be spent for some other worthy purpose."

Dispute Amendment

However, late in the debate, Laird said flatly, "This amendment does not deal with the rat program, and anyone presenting it as a rat amendment I believe is doing a disservice to the comprehensive Health Planning Act."

The lawmaker from Marshfield believes that the Public Health Service, which is administering the act, will find that the money provided in the amendment will help alleviate health problems other than rat control.

Taking a middle-of-the-road position on the amendment, Congressman Steiger told Congress that the Public Health Service was "best prepared to work local communities in carrying forward a coordinated and comprehensive program for attacking all health problems which exist, from rat control and extermination to venereal disease control."

New Agency 'Not Needed' To Govern Educational TV

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The state broadcasting system must be modernized to provide educational television offerings, but a new state commission should not be established to govern the proposed system, the state Coordinating Committee for Higher Education has been told.

Wisconsin must work to quickly get new state television stations on the air, said James Robertson of the educational broadcasting division, which was attached to the CCHE staff in the Kellett governmental reorganization bill.

But a totally new commission, such as proposed in a Coordinating Committee-backed bill calling for the creation of four ETV stations, is not necessary, he said.

Additional Work

The existing educational broadcasting board, which runs the state radio network, can do the additional work, he said.

The bill backed by the CCHE calls for four new stations located throughout the state, including one in the Fox Valley area. Also built would be two translators to extend television offerings into other areas of the state.

All would be run by the new 21 member commission, under the CCHE backed bill which bears an initial price tag of $1.2 million.

Membership on the commission would be held by representatives of state public and private elementary and secondary educational systems and higher education.

St. Joseph Grade Band Invited to State Music Convention

St. Joseph Grade School Band, under the direction of Francis Scholtz, has been invited to perform at the State Music Convention in January on the University of Wisconsin Campus.

The group was selected, along with a number of other school bands in the state, on the basis of audition tapes which were sent to the convention members.

There are 170 members in the three St. Joseph bands but only the advance band, including 70 members, will attend, Scholtz said.

The convention is jointly sponsored by the University of Wisconsin, the Wisconsin Music Educators Conference, the Wisconsin Music Teachers Association and the State Department of Public Instruction.

Psychiatrist Credits Groppi Marches With Juvenile Crime Drop

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A psychiatrist from the University of Wisconsin said Friday that the 30 per cent decrease in the number of juveniles handled this September in Milwaukee County Children's Court could be due to the civil rights marches organized by the Rev. James E. Groppi.

Dr. Seymour J. Halleck, speaking Friday at a panel discussion, heard another panelist, County Judge George A. Bowman Jr. of Children's Court, reveal the 30 per cent drop from September of 1966.

Father Groppi, a white Roman Catholic priest, is adviser to the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He organized the marathon marches in support of open housing.

Greek Immigrant Wills $200,000 to U. S.

CHICAGO (AP) — George Policantriotes, 84, a Greek immigrant who died in 1962, left his entire estate of more than $200,000 to the federal government to be used to pay public debts.

His major property, an 80-acre farm near Joliet west of Chicago, was auctioned in Chicago Friday and yielded $180,000. A real estate development company bought it.

A federal official said Policantriotes, a real estate dealer as well as farmer, left $43,450 in other forms of capital. Policantriotes, a bachelor, came to the United States at age 20 from the island of Mykonos.

OPEN THIS SUNDAY

It is with great reluctance that we announce our APPLETON STORE ONLY will be OPEN this Sunday, October 1st. Food Queen's policy has and always will be to oppose Sunday openings. This is of course obvious by the course we have followed to date. Why now do we open, you ask. The answer, simply, is to protect our franchise, the excellent patronage we have been so grateful and fortunate to receive.

Our Food Queen Appleton Store is now encircled with "Open Sunday Supermarkets", both large and small. No longer is Appleton a "Closed Sunday City".

We feel it is a shame that operators do not see fit to enjoy a day of rest, and Food Queen is more than willing to return to a 6 day operation when all of the supermarkets are willing to do so.

You can be assured our same "Royal Service" will be continued on Sundays.

Freshly-baked bakery from our own ovens and a complete assortment of delicatessen will be available . . . and of course the finest USDA Choice meats and pampered produce for your table.

THANK YOU, FOOD QUEEN STAFF

Appleton Gets New Funds for Youth Corps

Federal funds totaling $26,450 have been approved for the Appleton Neighborhood Youth Corps project for the summer of 1968.

Appleton, one of three communities in the state to win approval for funds, has been operating the program since December, 1966, with Norman Johnson, dean of boys, at Appleton High School-West, in charge.

The purpose of the program is to provide meaningful work experiences for financially disadvantaged high school students, along with counseling and vocational training.

About 25 youths are working in the Appleton project in clerical, custodial and maintenance construction areas at all four high schools.

That number will be increased to about 50 next summer, Johnson said.

Become Delegates

The ASC community chairman, vice chairman, and regular member automatically become delegates to the county convention, where farmers are elected to fill vacancies on the ASC county committee. The alternate committeemen become alternate delegates to the convention. The county convention will be held at the Chilton city hall at 8 p.m. on Oct. 11. Manawa High Sends Six to UW Laboratory

MANAWA — Six high school students attended the Superior Student Guidance Laboratory, University Wisconsin Marathon County Center at Wausau recently.

Susan Bailey, Donna Eder, Marsha Lindsay, Scott Ploger, Jennifer Smith, and Barbara Roenz entered the program as ninth graders and will continue until they graduate from high school.

During visits the students are tested and counseled. They write personal documents so counselors can assess their writing skills and learn more about their background, problems and plans. The total performance of the day is interpreted and shared with the student.

They are permitted to attend university classes and to visit various studios and laboratories. Laboratory staff members visit the school for a full day and meet with the parents of the participating students. Laboratory staff members meet with the faculty at the end of the day and share all the information available.

The staff plans to follow these students for many years through post-high school education and into employment.

Professor Predicts Manager Victory in Neenah Election

NEENAH — A highly-vocal proponent of the council-manager form of government Thursday threw his support behind the city manager backers in Neenah and predicted victory in the April referendum.

Dr. Charles Goff, associate professor of political science at Wisconsin State University — Oshkosh, told about 50 persons, mostly members of the League of Women Voters and the Citizens for City Manager, that the mayor system was "slowly fading from the scene."

He said Neenah, with its mayor form, was among the minority of cities in its population class which were "still trying to get along with an amateur show."

Goff, who is presently doing research on the manager form in Wisconsin, cited the need for "professionals" in top municipal offices.

He admitted that sometimes a mayor can turn in a "superb performance" but added "Consistency" comes under the manager system.

Goff discounted one of the major objections to the manager plan, saying it didn't matter if a manager left a community for a higher paying position.

"So what," he asked. If a manager moves to a better job, the citizens should feel fortunate that the city hired a good man, he remarked.

Goff said a manager could consider his tie in Neenah as a "phase in his life-long work in city government" and citizens should be pleased to have some of the "best years of his life."

He spoke of the city manager as dedicated to a career in municipal government and noted that a mayor moves on to other work when his term of office expires. "A manager gets stimulus and his salary sweetened by moving from one city to another."

5 County Prisoners Get 'Weekend Off'

Five prisoners got unexpected "weekend passes" from the Outagamie County Jail Friday afternoon — thanks to the judge who sent them there.

Judge Gustave J. Keller, noting that the entire courthouse was cold because the furnace was not working, said it was "inhuman" to keep prisoners in the frigid cells. Undersheriff Calvin L. Spice said that if the cells remain cold, he may have to transfer the remaining 27 prisoners to a jail in another county.

When the heat, which has been off all week, was still not on by 3 p.m. Friday, an angry Judge Keller called court into session "for the record" and sent five of the Huber Law (work release) prisoners home until 6 a.m. Monday.

"The court is well aware of conditions being experienced in the courthouse insofar as the lack of heat is concerned," the judge remarked.

Temperature Readings

He noted jail temperature readings which he had asked be taken. They were: East four cells, 67 degrees; Huber Law section, 67; west four cells, 63; girls' juvenile section, 65; big lockup area, 69; and boys' juvenile section, 66 degrees.

Judge Keller, who let his office girls leave work early, said it was 60 degrees in his third floor court chambers. He said that he had been considering cancelling his Friday morning court calendar because the courtroom was too cold.

"The court feels it is not in the interest of the county or the health of the prisoners that they remain confined," under the adverse conditions, Judge Keller said.

Commenting that he has no control over prisoners serving regular sentences, Judge Keller noted that he has "some direction" over Huber Law prisoners. He said that before making his decision, he discussed the matter with Spice and Harold Greinert, head jailer, and had been up to the jail several times himself.

Can Release 5

Although there were eight Huber Law prisoners, he said he would not release three of them because they were sentenced on charges involving excessive drinking.

He granted "out probation" until Monday to the other five, so they could "find warmer places." Conditions of the weekend passes are that the prisoners have a place to stay, report to work if they have weekend jobs, and "not indulge in any intoxicants."

Judge Keller said he heard there would be heat in the jail by Monday. "If there is not, we'll meet the situation as it occurs," he remarked.

Sylvester Esler, county board chairman, told a reporter Friday that there was no heat in the courthouse this week because of a delay in the shipping of parts needed for converting the courthouse heating system from coal to natural gas.

The $6,000 conversion job is expected to be completed next week. A contractor was working on the heating plant Friday.

Courthouse temperatures were as low as 58 degrees in some offices when employees came to work Friday morning. Portable heaters were used in many offices.

Policeman Loses Race Oshkosh Youths Who Stole Car Escape Into Woods

Authorities are pressing their search for three or four runaway youths from Oshkosh who stole a car in that city, then fled on foot from an Outagamie County patrolman who fired several warning shots as he chased them after he stopped the stolen car Thursday afternoon.

Investigators said Friday they have no idea where the youths are. The boys are believed to have stolen a 1960 Oldsmobile Thursday night from the Victor Voight home, route 1, Hortonville.

The white and blue, four-door hardtop bears Wisconsin license X3052. Voight, who notified the sheriff's department about 6:50 a.m. Friday, said a red 1966 auto, that had been stolen earlier about a half mile away, was abandoned near his home.

James Riehl, Stephenville, reported to authorities at 6:40 a.m. Friday that his red 1966 car had been stolen from his garage during the night.

A patrolman stopped the car, that had been stolen in Oshkosh, on Center Valley Road at Cummings Road, near Stephenville. He questioned the three boys in the car, then, when he walked back to his squad car to radio for information, the boys jumped out of the car and fled into the woods.

The patrolman chased them more than a half mile, during which time he fired several warning shots. Police said they searched the green car and found a large amount of items, including blankets, clothing, and camping gear, that had been stolen from cabins in the area.

The boys being sought are between 13 and 17 years old. One boy is wanted as a parole violator, police said. They are not sure if a fourth boy is involved.

part of Calumet County. The first budget for the new school district has been set at $1.9 million.

According to state statute, the district can assess municipalities and other tax districts of the member counties up to 2 million of the district's equalized valuation. The assessment for Waupaca will mean a rate of $1.07 per $1,000 equalized valuation.

New Building

William M. Sirek, director of the district, told Mrs. Ward part of the assessment is being earmarked for a new school building.

Last year, prior to forming the new vocational school district, adult education costs paid by the city were $17,999. In addition to the $22,228 which is being requested by the new district, approximately $2,000 will also be paid for the 1966-67 school year under the old vocational school program.

Mrs. Ward said approximately 10 students from the city of Waupaca are attending vocational school this year.

With the assessment, Mrs. Ward said she expects a substantial increase in the coming year's city budget and tax rate. Educational costs alone will increase the budget by more than $64,000, she said.

Additional $41,813

Coupled with the $22,228 for adult education, the city is faced with an additional $41,813 it must pay toward support of the local school district budget, she added. This year the city will have to raise $267,983 for the support of the Waupaca School district.

Homer and Jethro Show

Typical Humor Delights Small Audience

BY PAT DUFFEY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

After 35 years together as top flight entertainers, Homer and Jethro's performance in Appleton must have brought back memories of one-night stands from years back in desolate places.

Unfortunately, Appleton might have been just that for the size of welcome extended to the clowns of the Country and Western music Friday night at the Lawrence Chapel. Even the sound system rebelled.

Enthusiasm Shown

Part of a potential audience was dancing on the new College Avenue a couple blocks away during an intermittent drizzle. About 100 attended the first performance but 400 made it for the second.

Fortunately what the entertainers lacked in audience numbers they were repaid by appreciation and enthusiasm.

They opened with, "It's nice to see so many missing their dinner. The last time we were here in 1928 (This was their first appearance in Appleton) we were told it would be a cold day before they had us back."

They took lively jabs at everything. Commenting on the refurbished chapel, Jethro opined, "Nice building you got here if you ever get it finished."

Despite the heavy comedy interruptions during "serious" guitar solos by Homer, Jethro flashed more than a passing knowledge of music with his guitar.

The pair will appear on the Dean Martin Show via videotape Nov. 2. They taped their segment a short time ago.

Jethro observed, "He (Dean Martin) spills more than everybody else drinks."

They turned in their finest moment while demolishing "Winchester Cathedral." It went something like this:

"Winchester Cathedral. You're driving me mad."

"I don't know who sings it, but it's driving me mad."

"I'll be so glad when that song disappears."

"If set music back 50 years."

"Winchester Cathedral, you're doing me dirt."

Sound Problem

"They finally wrote one, that we couldn't hurt."

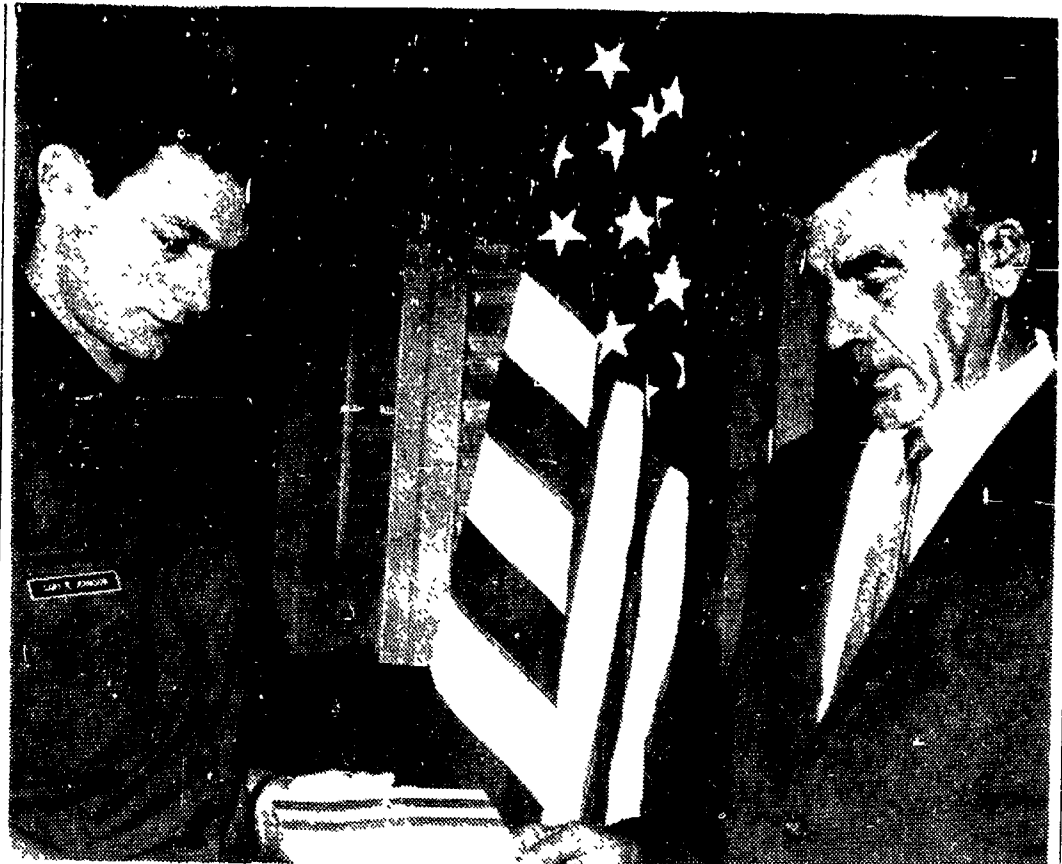

In the final verse they added,

"We didn't kill you but we certainly tried."

Sherry Lee and the Val-Rays even had a tough time as the warmer uppers for the stars. Their sound problems at first were the opposite of those to follow — too loud. As often happens in musical companies of recent vintage the instruments drowned out the singers.

She is the former Sherry McIntyre of Appleton, now Mrs. William Carter. Her husband heads the troupe which performed well under difficult circumstances.

Perhaps both troupes were playing against a stacked deck and the College Avenue merchants were the winners of the crowds returning after a summer hiatus while the avenue was being beautified.

Resolution Called Ambiguous

Oshkosh Votes Against A Tri-County Merger

OSHKOSH — Admittedly, effect on Winnebago County and councilmen here don't know much about a proposal to the legislature for merger of Winnebago, Outagamie, and Calumet into a single county, but they voted 6-1 against it.

Councilman Robert Moser was the sole minority voter. He said it would be better to talk it over instead of "passing this ambiguous resolution." He advised councilmen, "If you're saying you don't know what it's about, how can you say you don't want it?"

As author of the six-paragraph resolution, Councilman Robert Putzer said the measure announced that Oshkosh wants to discuss the merger. "But we won't get the opportunity," he added. "We don't want to be combined."

The resolution admitted that a change in county governmental structure would have a profound effect on Winnebago County and Oshkosh, its county seat. It urged that the public in the three counties be allowed to review and consider the proposal prior to any state legislation.

The resolution notified legislators that Oshkosh "is well satisfied with its county government and finds no need for any change in the structure of said government." It declared that the "citizens of the City of Oshkosh like it here in Winnebago County."

Councilmen have been more enthusiastic about their county government endorsement than the supervisors themselves. A county government reorganization committee is currently studying improvement measures. Its chairman is Hibbard Engler, Oshkosh, and members include Supvs. Orrin King and Joseph Drexler, both from Oshkosh.

VTE-12 Assessment Is $22,228; City Has 10 Students Attending

WAUPACA — The City of Waupaca will pay $22,228 for the support of the new Area Vocational, Technical and Adult Education-District 12, according to an assessment notice received Friday by Mrs. Harriet T. Ward, city clerk.

The new district is designed to provide adult education for residents of Waupaca, Outagamie and Winnebago counties and part of Calumet County. The first budget for the new school district has been set at $1.9 million.

According to state statute, the district can assess municipalities and other tax districts of the member counties up to 2 million of the district's equalized valuation. The assessment for Waupaca will mean a rate of $1.07 per $1,000 equalized valuation.

New Building

William M. Sirek, director of the district, told Mrs. Ward part of the assessment is being earmarked for a new school building.

Last year, prior to forming the new vocational school district, adult education costs paid by the city were $17,999. In addition to the $22,228 which is being requested by the new district, approximately $2,000 will also be paid for the 1966-67 school year under the old vocational school program.

Mrs. Ward said approximately 10 students from the city of Waupaca are attending vocational school this year.

With the assessment, Mrs. Ward said she expects a substantial increase in the coming year's city budget and tax rate. Educational costs alone will increase the budget by more than $64,000, she said.

Additional $41,813

Coupled with the $22,228 for adult education, the city is faced with an additional $41,813 it must pay toward support of the local school district budget, she added. This year the city will have to raise $267,983 for the support of the Waupaca School district.

'Love for President' Appeals to Hippies

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A new hippie newspaper has endorsed Colorado Gov. John A. Love for president—but not because of his political platform.

It was strictly because of his name. After all, said Dave Nelson, managing editor of the weekly, Solid Muldoon, "Love is a pretty magical word for us."

Said Love, chairman of the Republican Governors' Association, "oh, Lord, I can't even think of a comment."
